UNEMPLOYMENT GROUP IS ACTIVE

COX CAMPAIGNS FOR DEMOCRATIC HOUSE IN OPENING SPEECH

Both Parties Busy; Republicans Use Radio
Talks

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 21.—Encouraged by the entrance of former Governor James M. Cox, Dayton newspaper publisher and former Democratic presidential nominee, as an active campaigner, the motor caravan of Democratic state candidates today swung into the mid-western section of the state.

The tour of the Democratic campaigners today included visits to Bellefontaine, Urbana, Marysville,
Wilmington, Xenia, and Springfield.

Former Governor Cox took up the battle cry of the Democrats in the state Monday night at Lima where
he delivered his first speech of the present campaign with an urge to voters to "elect a Democratic congress."

Cox adversely criticized the Cooper administration for its handling of the prison situation prior to the fire which, on April 21, took the lives of 320 prisoners in Ohio
penitentiary.

He, also, strongly endorsed Robert
J. Bulkley, of Cleveland, Democratic nominee for United States
senator, for his advocacy of the repeal of the eighteenth amendment
and for the nullification of the Volstead law.

Exception was taken by Cox to
the alleged declaration of Secretary of Labor James J. Davis that the election of a Democratic house
this year will delay for at least three years the settlement of the tariff question, with "little, or no
hope of recovery in business."

"It will be difficult for Mr. Davis
to convince anyone that business
can be any worse than it is now
in any circumstances," said Cox.

After making his bid for votes
in the mid-western section of the state today, the Democratic campaigners will carry their campaign
tomorrow to Middletown, where former Governor James M. Cox
will be toastmaster at a luncheon;
the Soldiers' Home at Dayton, East-
on, and back to Dayton for a night
meeting in Memorial Hall.

Today's speaking schedule for Republican nominees and other
speakers follows: Governor Myers
Y. Cooper, at Ashtabula; United States Senator Roscoe C. McCulloch at Xenia and Columbus; Col.
Ralph D. Cole, at Marion; John W.
Bricker, at Warren; Mrs. Harriett
Taylor Upton, at Marion; Mrs. Wilma Sinclair Levan, at Coshocton;
Mrs. Viola D. Romans, at Youngs-
town; Mrs. Louise Ogden Devoe,
at Coshocton; Assistant Secretary of State John Belknap, at Toledo.

Republican speaking engagements Wednesday are: Governor
Cooper, in Columbiana County;
Senator McCulloch, at Tiffin and
Bowling Green; Secretary of State
Charles J. Brown, radio address at noon from station WAIU, Columbus; Attorney General Gilbert Bettman, at Ashland; Colonel Cole, at Cleveland; John W. Bricker, at Kenton; Mrs. Upton, at Kenton;
Mrs. Levan, at Portsmouth; Katharine Kennedy Brown, at Lancaster; Miss Gertrude Jones, at Bowling Green; Charles D. Simer-
al, radio address at 7:45 p. m., from station WAIU.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 21.—Denunciation of the tariff, economic and "monopolistic" policies of the Republican national administration and of the operation of the Cooper administration featured an address by former Congressman
Martin L. Davis, of Kent, here Monday night. Davis was the Democratic gubernatorial nominee two years ago.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 21.—A series of Republican campaign
broadcasts over station WSEN, Columbus, have been announced at
G. O. P. state headquarters. These talks are all limited to fifteen minutes, starting at 7:45 p. m.

The series was launched Monday
night with a talk by Miss Gertrude Jones, vice chairman of the Republican state central and executive committees. Judge Frank Geiger, of Springfield, a member of the state utilities commission, is to broadcast tonight.

BUCKLEY MUST PAY FINE FIRST

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 21.—Before Bert B. Buckley, former state treasurer convicted of conspiracy
to bribe a prohibition officer, can
be released from Atlanta Penitentiary where he is serving a sentence of two years, six months and
one day, he must pay a $1,000 fine,
the U. S. district attorney's office
announced today.

Haveth Mau, U. S. district attorney, has recommended to the parole board that Buckley be freed
and his action was approved by Judge Benson Hough, who sentenced the Dayton man.

Judge Hough also fined him $1,
000, and the fine has not been paid.
The district attorney's office pointed out that if a parole is granted
Buckley must remit the fine for
the parole to become effective.

CHICAGO GANG CHIEF QUIZZED IN LINGLE CASE AFTER CAPTURE

FILM NEWLYWED

Hollywood's newest bride and bridegroom are Lewis Stone, an above, suave film player, and the former Hazel Elizabeth Woolf of California. They were married at Yuma, Ariz.

MINING DISTRICTS APPEAL FOR RELIEF TO STATE AGENCIES

Governor Asked For Help; Donahy Plan
May Be Used

MARTINS PERRY, O., Oct. 21.—
Residents of the Ohio and Hocking Valley mining districts anxiously awaited action today of the state
on their pleas for relief for poverty-
stricken families in this section.

Adjutant General Arthur W. Reynolds announced at Columbus yesterday that an immediate investigation into the reported conditions
would be started. Two members of the adjutant general's staff have been appointed to conduct an intensive survey of the conditions.

Many appeals for aid have been made. The latest was by State Representative Willard Piper of
Belmont County, who requested
Governor Myers Y. Cooper that aid
be provided by the state for 1,500
desperate persons in this county who are in need of food and clothing.

No action will be taken by the governor's office, according to word received here, until the reported
conditions are made authoritative.

A joint meeting of the county
parent-teacher association and the school board was held last week when it was decided that local aid and donations would be received.

It was suggested that funds be provided from the emergency fund
of the state for relief.

It was pointed out at the meeting that the conditions this year
are more serious than they have been for some time. The mining slump and the recent summer
drought are blamed for the destitute condition of the district. Many of the mines are closed, and those
that are operating are not producing at capacity.

Low wages prevail in most of the mines, also, it has been pointed out.

Hundreds of school children in this section are forced to stay at home because of lack of food and clothing. All county schools have been organized in their calls for aid.

The situation recalled the slump of 1928 when Governor Vic Dona-
hey had charge of extensive relief
work in the mining counties. The National Guard was called in at
that time to carry on the operations. The slump was caused by general mining unemployment following a strike.

If state officials decide that relief work is necessary the Dona-hey plan may be used, it was indicated at Columbus. This will be used at least until the next state legislature meets in January.

WANTS SCHORR'S JOB

LIMA, O., Oct. 21.—The suggestion that Governor Cooper compel Commerce Director Edward D.
Schorr to "resign his political campaign jobs or resign from his office as commerce director" was made by George White, of Marietta Democratic gubernatorial nominee, in an address here Monday night.

Raiders Catch "Bugs" Moran; Reopen Zuta Probe

WAUKEGAN, Ill., Oct. 21.—
A raiding squad of sheriff's
George "Bugs" Moran, Chicago gang leader and enemy of Alphonse Capone, in a raid on a Cassidy's Lake roadhouse eighteen miles northwest of here.

Moran attempted to draw a revolver when the squad entered, but
was disarmed before any shots
were fired. Two guns were found in his room. The gang leader was charged with vagrancy and carrying concealed weapons and held
here on $50,000 bond in the Lake County Jail. He will be questioned
today by the state's attorney, it was announced.

Detectives had trailed Moran to the roadhouse from Bimiji,
Minn., where he had posed as O.
G. Heitel, retired business man,
while organizing an asserted liquor
running ring in the neighborhood
of Minneapolis and St. Paul.

Moran's seizure will reopen the investigation into the murder of
Alfred "Jake" Lingle, Chicago
Tribune reporter, it was indicated.

Moran and the north side gang
under his control are believed to hold the key to the reporter's murder last June 9. Lingle, according to investigators, was slain because he had failed to deliver protection to the millions of Moran although he had received payment.

The gang leader was to be questioned in the slaying of Jack Zuta,
his erstwhile partner in Chicago
gang affairs, authorities said.

The raiding squad seized Moran
in a resort managed by Mrs.
Elizabeth Cassidy, five miles southwest of Antioch, Ill.

Moran leaped from his bed in a
back room of the resort, snatching
a pistol from beneath his pillow.
He was quickly disarmed.

WINTER SPELL CONTINUES TO CHILL NATION

Mercury Declines As No Relief Seen For Several Days

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—Middle Western states today were still in
the grip of snows and wintry temperatures which dropped in from the Mackenzie River basin.

No general relief was seen for several days by meteorologists.
Freezing temperatures were general throughout the middle states and more snow was forecast in several sections.

The mercury here last night and
early today was steadily declining,
indicating that yesterday's low of 24 degrees at 6 a. m. might be equalled.

Snow fell last night in parts of Kansas and Missouri. Snowfall also whitened the terrain of Nebraska,
the Dakotas and Minnesota. Frost reached as far south as Kentucky
and Tennessee.

Sections of Canada reported zero
and sub-zero temperatures.

Agencies, both public and private,
rallied their forces to obtain shelter and food for Chicago's homeless, hungry and jobless.
Shelters were crowded with men
and women.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—Chilly
temperatures in the East will continue through the day and tomorrow, weather bureau forecasters
said today. Toward the end of the week warmer weather was expected, terminating winter's first visit.
A minor shortage of milk was
faced due to the blocking roads by
the blizzard which swept western
New York. Thousands of gallons of milk enroute to New York, Buffalo and other cities was held up in trucks stranded on highways blocked by snowdrifts. Opening of most of the roads today was expected to make any shortage of brief duration.

Extensive damage to orchards
was done by heavy snows which broke down trees in western New

Schomker Brothers, of Lacaster, O., have completed a new well on
the Kulp lease near here which it
was estimated today is producing 1,500,000 cubic feet of gas per day.

AMBUSHED BY GANG

Ambushed by a gang whom police believe to have been kidnapers, Clyde Garrison, top, wealthy Peoria, Ill., gambler, and his wife,
below, attempted resistance only
to be moved down by machine gun bullets as they were about to enter their home. Mrs. Garrison was killed and Garrison seriously
wounded.

MURDER THEORY IN DEATH OF INVENTOR PROBED BY POLICE

Discord Verdict Of Suicide As Crows Are Revealed

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 21.—More than three weeks after his death, Columbus police today were working on a clue that Albert Rush, wealthy local inventor, was murdered and that he did not commit suicide as was at first believed.

Rush's body was found in the basement of his east side home, hanging from a rafter. Following a coroner's autopsy, an unofficial verdict of suicide was given as the reason for the inventor's death.

The investigation today centered about the establishing of the identity of the maid who is reported to have found the body. Another question which police are confronting is just when Rush died. The police probe was instigated by Chief of Detectives G. W. Shelton barker after a number of questions involving Rush's death had been placed before him. A preliminary investigation showed that the whole affair had been shrouded in mystery.

A battle for the appointment of executor for Rush's estate was scheduled to open in probate court here this morning. Two factions of Rush's family will contest for administration of the Rush estate which is said to amount to more than $50,000.

One of the principals in the court fight will be Mrs. Ruby Rush, divorced wife of the noted inventor, who returned to Columbus following her former husband's death.
It was said that Mrs. Rush is in possession of a will in which Rush is said to have expressed a preference that she be named as executrix of the estate.

Mrs. Rush is famous on the west coast as an actress.

The other faction is composed of Rush's father and brother. His father is Andreas Poesch and his brother is Alphonse Roesch, both of Columbus. Another brother is said to be living in California. It was learned that the inventor disowned his family over religious differences and changed the spelling of his name. The father and son are expected to make a bid for the administrative duties of the estate.

WILMINGTON OPENS SCHOOLS AGAIN

WILMINGTON, O., Oct. 21.—
After a ten-day vacation caused by
an epidemic of infantile paralysis,
the Wilmington city schools were today reopened. Nine cases of the dread malady were reported in the county.

Clinton County schools, which have been closed because of the same disease, were reopened Monday.

FEDERAL BODY WILL ASK ASSISTANCE OF STATES; OPEN JOBS

Push Post Offices; Industry, Cities Share
Burden

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.— President Hoover's committee on unemployment got down to work today to outline its procedure in meeting
the present crisis.

Exclusively a government
group the committee under the chairmanship of Secretary of Commerce Lamont
aims to guide the federal and state governments, and national industry, in measures
to speed public and private construction programs to give winter employment.

Other members of the committee
are Secretaries Mellon, Hurley, Wilbur, Hyde, and Davis, and Eugene Meyer, chairman of the federal reserve board.

While officials indicated the committee would not resemble the Harding conference on unemployment of 1921 but its basic procedure will be similar.

State co-operation will first be sought as was done in the drought
crisis. Industry of national scope
will be called upon to do its part
in stimulating expansion programs.
Industry will be asked to find
means of advancing projects so
as to begin at once what ordinarily
would await the coming of spring.

The federal government on one
hand, will be expected to co-ordinate its building program and expedite their commencement, while
ways will be sought for getting the
states to start their road building
and repair operation in parts of the country where weather conditions will permit.

President Hoover will ask congress in December, to provide its shares of the state road funds to be made immediately available,
and to make the necessary ap-
propriations—possibly $25,000,000—
for the public building programs
which have not been started. In addition, those now under way will be speeded up.

The treasury department already
has taken on an extra force of fifty architects to work on post office
building plans and other projects.

It is understood the Lamont committee will strive to give a degree of permanency to its work to prevent or care for similar future
crises.

BUCKEY, O., Oct. 21.—"Industry must share the burden with labor," declared C. F. Michael,
president of the Ohio Locomotive
Crane Company, today in issuing an appeal to manufacturers of Crawford County to refrain from
reducing their operating staffs.

"This has no time to reduce wages
or cut staffs," he declared. "Making profits should be forgotten for
the time being."

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—More than $5,000,000 was being marshalled by New York to wage an intensive war against unemployment under the impetus of federal plans as embodied in the Hoover government committee.

The municipal government has set aside $1,000,000 in a regular budget appropriation. Brooklyn
business men launched a campaign
for $200,000 for immediate relief in that borough and a fund of $500,
000 is being raised in Queens.

SCHOOLS RE-OPEN AT MT. STERLING

LONDON, O., Oct. 21.—Mt. Sterling public schools were open again
today after remaining closed for two weeks. Classes were suspended
following the death of Maxwell
Zahn, 14, a high school student,
from infantile paralysis.

Miss Grace O'Day, of near Mt.
Sterling, who is ill with the disease, was reported slightly improved. No new cases have been reported in this region in the last ten days.

OHIO YOUTH SERIOUSLY SHOT BY POLICEMAN RESISTING ATTACK

PAINESVILLE, O., Oct. 21.—Edward J. Dougherty, 23, was shot and believed seriously wounded
here today by Patrolman Robert Thornton when the youth and four companions resisted the attempts
of the officer to arrest them, according to police.

Thornton was severely bruised
and beaten in his battle with the five youths, police said.

The shooting took place in front
of a downtown restaurant. The youths, according to Thornton, had

Officials of the Xenia Community Chest organization are jubilant
over the announcement that Earl E. Mann, prominent Xenia
business man, has consented to accept the chairmanship and direct the third annual Community
Fund campaign this fall.

Selection of Mr. Mann to be in charge of the drive was made at the first meeting of the newly-appointed chest executive committee
Monday night at City Hall. The members feel they could not have made a happier choice and chest
leaders were being congratulated
Tuesday over their selection.

Mr. Mann, who is president of the Xenia Retail Merchants' Association, has been particularly active in civic affairs and chest officials consider him as just the right man to be placed at the helm if the forthcoming drive, like its predecessors, is to be successful.

The executive committee, at its initial meeting discussed other
phases of the coming drive but
dates for the campaign this fall
have not been definitely decided.

EARL E. MANN
upon, it is announced by Fred

Lollypops Help Science In Viewing Sun Eclipse

NIAFOU (TIN CAN) ISLAND, South Seas, Oct. 21.—With
their delicate instruments and
huge cameras in place, scientists
awaited the eclipse of the sun today on this small tropical island.

The weather here for the past few days has been practically
cloudless, and the various parties
were hopeful that they would get an unobstructed view of the eclipse.

For the first time perhaps in the long history of solar eclipse
observation, scientists today with
the assistance of all-day suckers
and gaudy trinkets trained their giant cameras on the sun during a total eclipse.

The lollypops and trinkets were
an important part of the baggage
of the United States expedition
to Tin Can Island in the South Seas. They were designed to secure the cooperation of the natives

BANDIT ROBBED OF PISTOL

MARYSVILLE, O., Oct. 21.—
John Merritt, operator of a
filling station here, is in possession today of a .45 caliber revolver that lacks the cylinder,
and a pair of gloves as souvenirs
of an attempted holdup last night. Merritt routed the two would-be bandits, who fled
empty-handed.

Merritt was awakened by a
man who told him his automobile had run out of gasoline and
asked for a gallon in a can to take to his machine. When Merritt went outside the station, another man stuck a gun in his ribs and ordered him to hold up his hands.

Instead of complying with the order, Merritt grabbed the gun
and grappled with the man. The bandit freed himself and the pair fled.

BOXER HELD AFTER OPPONENT DIES

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—Charged
with homicide in connection with the death of Carl Baldus, former
amateur boxer and one of Max
Schmelling's sparring partners,
Larry Hogan, Negro light heavyweight, was to be arraigned in court today. Baldus, making his professional debut, died in his dressing room a few minutes after Hogan brought his collapse with a right uppercut under the heart.

Baldus came to America three years ago from Germany.

EIGHT KILLED ORDER OF BRITISH

PRESSBURG, Czechoslovakia,
Oct. 21.—Eight persons were killed and four seriously injured
today by an explosion in the Czechoslovakian munitions plant
at Roth.

The statement was issued in the form of a "white paper" by the British colonial office in conjunction with Sir John Hope Simpson's
long expected Palestine report.

Characterized by Zionists almost
immediately upon publication as
"the biggest blow to Zionism since beginning of the movement" and
viewed as nothing more or less than repudiation of the Balfour
declaration of 1917—under which
a Jewish national home is guaranteed—it brought speedy reaction
from the various interested organizations.

Dr. Chaim Weizmann, president
of the Jewish agency for Palestine
and the Zionist world organization,
resigned both positions on the ground that the government's attitude renders his further cooperation in regards to the Palestine
problem impossible.

SIXTY HURT AS DOUBLE BLAST WRECKS SHAFT

Dynamite Blast Is Fol-
On Surface

ALSDORF, Germany, Oct.
21.—Forty men were killed
and sixty injured, many of them seriously, when two terrific explosions wrecked the Anna Mine at Aachen, near here, today, according to the latest official check-up.

The first blast was a dynamite
explosion 800 feet below
the surface which virtually wrecked the mine. The second was detonation of a benzine
supply on the surface which shattered the administration
buildings.

More than two thousand miners escaped death by the closest margin.

At first it was thought that thousands of men were trapped or killed by the explosion. Two shifts
were changing at the moment of the accident and most of the miners were underground.

The explosion was heard for
miles, shattering thousands of windows and shaking the surrounding country with the violence of an earthquake.

The miners who were changing shifts underground scrambled for
the exits, and most of them made
a miraculous escape a few moments before the mine and the buildings above it were reduced to shambles. Rescue workers who rushed to the scene were relieved
to find that the majority of the miners had made their escape, and
all efforts were directed immediately toward saving those entombed
in the wrecked shaft.

The bodies of the known dead
were burned almost beyond recognition. It appeared the victims had met instant death. A number of the injured were reported in a critical condition.

Several hours after the blast it
was reported only a few miners
were still entombed in the wrecked
shaft, and rescue workers hoped to reach them shortly. Although a large number were still unaccounted for, it was believed a further check-up would reveal they had escaped.

Among the first to arrive at the scene were the wives, mothers
and children of the mine-workers.
Poignant scenes were witnessed as
one by one the charred bodies of the victims were brought to the surface.

That the disaster was not greater
was attributed to the fact the
miners were changing shifts at the time the blast occurred.

Rescue workers were seriously handicapped by white-hot flames
which burst from the wreckage of the mine. Direct approach was impossible.

In all, twenty-three bodies were recovered above ground. Some of them were believed to be those of miners who had reached the surface after the first blast but had been killed by the benzine explosion.

ORGANIZATION FOR FARMERS EXTOLLED

BOWLING GREEN, O., Oct. 21.—
The burden and responsibility of securing for agriculture as a whole
"the equality of opportunity to which this basic industry is entitled" falls upon the organized farmers of Ohio, L. B. Palmer, of Columbus, president of the Ohio
Farm Bureau Federation, declared in an address here today.

The address was delivered at a meeting held in observance of "Farm Bureau Week." Eight counties were represented.

Palmer said that an equitable state income tax, rural police, a uniform traffic code, a new hunters' license law, and elimination of the property tax on automobiles are favored by the farm bureau.
These desires can be realized, he said, if the organized farmers will work together.

DIAMOND COUNSEL WOULD FREE HIM

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—Attorneys for Jack "Legs" Diamond today were reported making plans to seek a writ of habeas corpus in an effort to have the gangster removed from the Metropolitan Hospital.

Diamond, wants to go to his summer home at Acra, N. Y., it is reported, but police it is said have no intention of letting him out of the city.

WILL TRY IRIGOYEN

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 21.—A decree ordering trial of Ex-President Hipolito Irigoyen and former members of his cabinet on charges of misappropriation of public funds will be issued shortly by the provisional government of the Argentine, it was learned today.

publicans Use Radio
Talks

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 21.—Encouraged by the entrance of
former Governor James M. Cox, Dayton newspaper publisher and former Democratic presidential nominee, as an active campaigner, the motor caravan of Democratic state
candidates today swung into the
mid-western section of the state.

The tour of the Democratic cam-
Bellefontaine, Urbana, Marysville,
Wilmington, Xenia, and Spring-
field.

battle cry of the Democrats in the
state Monday night at Lima where
present campaign with an urge to
voters to "elect a Democratic congress."

Cox adversely criticized the
Cooper administration for its hand-
to the fire which, on April 21, took
the lives of 320 prisoners in Ohio
penitentiary.

He also, strongly endorsed Robert
J. Buckley, of Cleveland, Democratic nominee for United States
senator, for his advocacy of the repeal of the eighteenth amendment
and for the nullification of the Volstead law.

Exception was taken by Cox to
the alleged declaration of Secretary of Labor James J. Davis that the election of Democratic house
this year will delay for at least
three years the settlement of the
tariff question, with "little, or no
hope of recovery in business."

"It will be difficult for Mr. Davis
to convince anyone that business
can be any worse than it is now
in any circumstances," said Cox
after making their aid for votes
in the mid-western section of the
state today, the Democratic cam-
paigners will carry their campaign
tomorrow to Middletown, where
former Governor James M. Cox
will be toastmaster at a luncheon;
the Soldiers' Home at Dayton, East-
on, and back to Dayton for a night
meeting in Memorial Hall.

Today's speaking schedule for Republican nominees and other
speakers follows: Governor Myers
Y. Cooper, at Ashtabula; United States Senator Roscoe C. McCulloch at Xenia and Columbus; Col.
Ralph D. Cole, at Marion; John W.
Bricker, at Warren; Mrs. Harriet
Taylor Upton, at Marion; Mrs. William Sinclair Levan, at Coshocton;
Mrs. Viola D. Romans, at Youngs-
town; Mrs. Louise Ogden Devoe,
of State John Belmont, at Toledo.

Republican speaking engagements Wednesday are: Governor
Cooper, in Columbiana County;
Senator McCulloch, at Tiffin and
Belmont, at Kent; Mrs. Upton, at Kenton; Mrs. Levan, at Portsmouth; Katherine Kennedy Brown, at Lancaster; Miss Gertrude Jones, at Bowling Green; Charles D. Simer-
from station WAU.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 21.—Denunciation of the tariff, economic
and "monopolistic" policies of the Republican national administration and of the operation of the Cooper administration featured an
Martin L. Davy, of Kent, here Monday night. Davy was the Democratic gubernatorial nominee two
years ago.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 21.—A
series of Republican campaign
broadcasts over station WSEN, Columbus, have been announced at
G. O. P. state headquarters. These
talks are all limited to fifteen minutes, starting at 7:45 p. m.

The series was launched Monday
night with a talk by Miss Gertrude
Jones, vice chairman of the Republican state central and executive committees. Judge Frank Geiger, of Springfield, a member of
the state utilities commission, is to radiocast tonight.

BUCKLEY MUST

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 21.—Before Bert B. Buckley, former state
treasurer convicted of conspiracy
be released from Atlanta Penitentiary where he is serving a sentence of two years, six months and
one day, he must pay a $1,000 fine,
the U. S. district attorney's office
announced today.

Haveth Mau, U. S. district attorney, has recommended to the pa-
role board that Buckley be freed
Judge Benson Hough, who sentenced the Dayton man.

Judge Hough also fined him $1,
000, and the fine has not been paid.
The district attorney's office pointed out that if a parole is granted
Buckley must remit the fine for
the parole to become effective.

MINING DISTRICTS APPEAL FOR RELIEF TO STATE AGENCIES

Help; Donahey Plan

MARTINS FERRY, O., Oct. 21.—
Residents of the Ohio and Hock-
ing Valley mining districts anxiously
awaited action today of the state
stricken families in this section.

Adjutant General Arthur W. Reynolds announced at Columbus yesterday that an immediate investigation into the reported conditions
would be started. Two members
been appointed to conduct an investigative survey of the conditions.

Many appeals for aid have been
made. The latest was by State Representative Willard Piper of
Belmont County, who requested
Governor Myers Y. Cooper that aid
be provided by the state for 1,500
destitute persons in this county
who are in need of food and clothing.

No action will be taken by the
governor's office, according to word
received here, until the reported
conditions are made authoritative.
A joint meeting of the county
parent-teacher association and the school board was held in which it was decided that local aid and donations would be received. It was suggested that funds be provided from the emergency fund
of the state for relief.

It was pointed out at the meeting that the conditions this year
are more serious than they have been for some time. The mining
slump and the recent summer
drought are blamed for the destitute condition of the district. Many
of the mines are closed, and those
that are operating are not producing at capacity.

Low wages prevail in most of the
mines, also, it has been pointed out. Hundreds of school children in this section are forced to stay at home because of lack of food and
organized in their calls for aid.

This situation recalled the slump of 1928 when Governor Victor Dona-
hey had charge of extensive relief
work in the mining counties. The National Guard was called in at
that time to carry on the operations. The slump was caused by general mining unemployment following a strike.

If state officials decide that relief work is necessary the Dona-hey plan may be used, it was said today. Toward the end of the week warmer weather was expected, terminating winter's first visit.
A minor shortage of milk was
faced due to the blocking roads by
the blizzard which swept western
New York. Thousands of gallons of milk enroute to New York, Buffalo and other cities was held up on highways, stranded on highways
blocked by snowdrifts. Opening of most of the roads today was expected to make any shortage of
brief duration.

Extensive damage to orchards
was done by heavy snows which
broke down trees in western New York, a checkup revealed today.

Schemmer Brothers, of Lancaster,
O., have completed a new well on
the Kulp lease near here which it
was estimated today is producing
1,000,000 cubic feet of gas per day.

Raiders Catch "Bugs" Moran; Reopen Zuta Probe

WAUKEGAN, Ill., Oct. 21.—
A raiding squad of sheriff's
George "Bugs" Moran, Chicago gang leader and enemy of Alphonse Capone, in a raid on a Cassidy's Lake road-
house eighteen miles northwest of here.

Moran attempted to draw a revolver when the squad entered, but
was disarmed before any shots
were fired. Two guns were found in his room. The gang leader was charged with vagrancy and carrying concealed weapons and held
here on $50,000 bond in the Lake
County Jail. He will be questioned
was announced.

Detectives had trailed Moran to the roadhouse from Bimijl,
Minn., where he had posed as O.
G. Heitel, retired business man,
while organizing an assorted liquor
of Minneapolis and St. Paul.

Moran's seizure will reopen the
Alfred "Jake" Lingle, Chicago
Tribune reporter, it was indicated.

under his control are believed to
hold the key to the reporter's murder last June 9. Lingle, according
to investigators, was slain because
to the minions of Moran although
he had received payment.

The gang leader was to be questioned in the slaying of Jack Zuta,
his erstwhile partner in Chicago
gang affairs, authorities said.

The raiding squad seized Moran
in a resort managed by Mrs.
Elizabeth Cassidy, five miles southwest of Antioch, Ill.

Moran leaped from his bed in a
back room of the resort, snatching
a pistol from beneath his pillow.
He was quickly disarmed.

WINTER SPELL CONTINUES TO CHILL NATION

Relief Seen For Several Days

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—Middle Western states today were still in
the grip of snows and wintry temperatures which dropped in from
the Mackenzie River basin.

No general relief was seen for
several days by meteorologists.
Freezing temperatures were general throughout the middle states and
more snow was forecast in several
sections.

The mercury here last night and
early today was steadily declining,
indicating that tomorrow's low of 24 degrees at 6 a. m. might be equalled.

Kansas and Missouri. Snowfall also
whitened the terrain of Nebraska,
the Dakotas, and Minnesota. Frosts
reached as far south as Kentucky
and Tennessee.

Sections of Canada reported zero
and sub-zero temperatures.
Agencies, both public and private,
rallied their forces to obtain
shelter and food for Chicago's
homeless, hungry and jobless.
Shelters were crowded with men
and women.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—Chilly
temperatures in the East will con-
row, weather bureau forecasters
said today. Toward the end of the week warmer weather was expected, terminating winter's first visit.

faced due to the blocking roads by
the blizzard which swept western

WILMINGTON OPENS
SCHOOLS AGAIN

WILMINGTON, O., Oct. 21.—
After a ten-day vacation caused by
an epidemic of infantile paralysis,
the Wilmington city schools were
dread malady were reported in the county.

Clinton County schools, which
have been closed because of the same disease, were reopened Monday.

AMBUSHED BY GANG

Ambushed by a gang whom police believe to have been kidnapers, Clyde Garrison, 105, wealthy Peoria, Ill., gambler, and his wife,
below, attempted resistance only
to be mowed down by machine gun
bullets as they were about to enter their home. Mrs. Garrison was killed and Garrison seriously
wounded.

President Hoover will ask congress in December, to provide its
shares of the state road funds to
be made immediately available,
and to make the necessary ap-
propriations—possibly $25,000,000—
for the public building programs
which have not been started. In addition, those now under way will
be speeded up.

The treasury department already
has taken on an extra force of fifty
architects to work on post office
building plans and other projects.
It is understood the Lamont commission will strive to give a degree
of permanency to its work to prevent or ease for similar future
crises.

BUENOS AIRES, O., Oct. 21.—"Industry must share the burden with
labor," declared C. F. Michael,
president of the Ohio Locomotive
Crane Company, today in issuing
an appeal to manufacturers to Crawford County to refrain from
reducing their operating staffs.

"This is no time to reduce wages
or cut staffs," he declared. "Making profits should be forgotten for

$5,000,000 was being marshalled by
New York to wage an intensified war against unemployment under the new impetus of federal plans as embodied by the Hoover government committee.

The municipal government has
set aside $1,000,000 in a regular
budget appropriation. Brooklyn
businessmen launched a campaign
of $200,000 for immediate relief in that borough and a fund of $500,- 000 is being raised in Queens.

SCHOOLS RE-OPEN
AT MT. STERLING

LONDON, O., Oct. 21.—Mt. Sterling public schools were open again
today after remaining closed for
two weeks. Classes were suspended
following the death of Maxwell
Zahn, 14, a high school student,
from infantile paralysis.

Miss Grace O'Day, of near Mt.
Sterling, who is ill with the disease, was reported slightly improved. No new cases have been reported in this region in the last
ten days.

PAINESVILLE, O., Oct. 21.—Edward J. Dougherty, 23, was shot
and believed seriously wounded
here today by Patrolman Robert Thornton when the youth and four
companions resisted the attempts
of the officer to arrest them, according to police.

Thornton was severely bruised
and beaten in his battle with the
five youths, police said.

The shooting took place in front
of a downtown restaurant. The youths, according to Thornton, had

Burden

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—President Hoover's committee on unemployment got
down to work today to out-
line its procedure in meeting
the present crisis.

Exclusively a government
group the committee under
the chairmanship of Secretary of Commerce Lamont
aims to guide the federal and
state governments, and national industry, in measures
to speed public and private
construction programs to give
winter employment.

Other members of the committee
are Secretaries Mellon, Hurley,
Wilbur, Hyde, and Davis, and Eugene Meyer, chairman of the federal reserve board.

While officials indicated the committee would not resemble the conference on unemployment of 1921 but its basic principle will be similar.

State co-operation will first be
sought as was done in the drought
crisis. Industry of national scope
will be called upon to do its part
in stimulating expansion programs.
Industry will be asked to find
means of advancing projects so
as to begin at once what ordinarily
would await the coming of spring.

The federal government on one
hand, will be expected to coordinate its building program and expedite their commencement, while
states to start their road building
and repair operation in parts of
the country where weather conditions will permit.

President Hoover will ask congress in December, to provide its

Officials of the Xenia Community Chest organization are jubilant
over the announcement that Earl E. Mann, prominent Xenia
business man, has consented to
accept the chairmanship and direct the third annual Community
Fund campaign this fall.

Selection of Mr. Mann to be in charge of the drive was made at
the first meeting of the newly-appointed chest executive committee
Monday night at City Hall. The
members feel they could not have
made a happier choice and chest
leaders were being congratulated
Tuesday over their selection.

Mr. Mann, who is president of the Xenia Retail Merchants' Association, has been particularly active in civic affairs and chest officials consider him as just the right man to be placed at the helm for the forthcoming drive, like its predecessors, is to be successful.

The executive committee, at its
initial meeting discussed other
phases of the coming drive but
dates for the campaign this fall
have not been definitely decided.

Upon it, it is announced by Fred
Lang, committee chairman.

Lollypops Help Science
In Viewing Sun Eclipse

NAUFOU (TIN CAN) ISLAND, South Seas, Oct. 21.—With
their delicate instruments and
huge cameras in place, scientists
awaited the eclipse of the sun today on this small tropical island.

The weather here for the past
few days has been practically
cloudless, and the various parties
were hopeful that they would get
an unobstructed view of the eclipse.

For the first time perhaps in
the long history of solar eclipse
observation, scientists today with
the assistance of all-day suckers
and gaudy trinkets trained their
giant cameras on the sun during a
total eclipse.

The lollypops and trinkets were
an important part of the baggage
of the United States expedition
to Tin Can Island in the South
Seas. They were designed to secure the cooperation of the natives

The United States' expedition, headed by Commander C. H. J.
Keppeler, U. S. N., carried 400 odd pieces of baggage including a sixty-five foot camera, a 2,500 foot Elstein camera and 12,000 feet of lumber.

Reporting on the lollypop angle of solar observation, Commander Keppeler said:

"The natives are very hospitable, amiable and curious and when they are not 'in church'
which is five or six times a day, they are in and around the camp in great numbers. Our all-day suckers and gaudy trinkets have worked like a charm. The natives will work some, but their principal occupation is religion."

The little island, Naufoou, is a tiny piece of volcanic rock hemmed in by perpetual surf and inhabited by natives; only two white men live there; and once a year a passing steamer throws overboard in the can the incoming mail—hence the name Tin Can Island.

BANDIT ROBBED OF PISTOL

MARYSVILLE, O., Oct. 21.—
John Merritt, operator of a
filling station here, is in possession today of a .45 caliber revolver that lacks the cylinder,
and a pair of gloves as souvenirs
of an attempted holdup last night. Merritt routed the two
would-be bandits, who fled
empty-handed.

Merritt was awakened by a
man who told him his automobile had run out of gasoline and
asked for a gallon in a can to take to his machine. When Merritt went outside the station, an-
other man stuck a gun in his
ribs and ordered him to hold up
his hands.

Instead of complying with the
order, Merritt grabbed the gun
and grappled with the man. The bandit freed himself and the bandit fled.

BOXER HELD AFTER OPPONENT DIES

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—Charged
with homicide in connection with
the death of Carl Baldus, former
amateur boxer and one of Max
Schmeling's sparring partners,
Larry Hogan, Negro light heavy-
weight, was to be arraigned in
court today. Baldus, making his professional debut, died in his
dressing room a few minutes after Hogan brought his collapse with a
right uppercut under the heart.

Baldus came to America three
years ago from Germany.

ORDER OF BRITISH

PRESSBURG, Czechoslovakia,
Oct. 21.—Eight persons were killed and four seriously injured
today by an explosion in the Czechoslovakian munitions plant
at Roth.

London, Oct. 21.—Strong protests from all parties of the Zionist movement were forthcoming today against the British government's announced future policy on its mandatory rule in Palestine.

The statement was issued in the
form of a "white paper" by the British colonial office in conjunction with Sir John Hope Simpson's
long expected Palestine report.

immediately upon publication as
"the biggest blow to Zionism since
beginning of the movement" and
viewed as nothing more or less
than repudiation of the Balfour
declaration of 1917—under which
a Jewish national home is guaranteed—it brought speedy reaction
from the various interested organizations.

Dr. Chaim Weizmann, president
of the Jewish agency for Palestine
and the Zionist world organization,
resigned both positions on the
ground that the government's attitude renders his further cooperation in regards to the Palestine
problem impossible.

On Surface

ALSDORF, Germany, Oct.
21.—Forty men were killed
and sixty injured, many of
them seriously, when two terrific explosions wrecked the Anna Mine at Aachen, near
here, today, according to the
latest official check-up.

The first blast was a dynamite
explosion 800 feet below
the surface which virtually
wrecked the mine. The second
was detonation of a benzine
supply on the surface which
buildings.

More than two thousand miners
escaped death by the closest mar-
gin.

At first it was thought that thousands of men were trapped or
killed by the explosion. Two shifts
were changing at the moment of the accident and most of the miners were underground.

The explosion was heard for
miles, shattering thousands of windows and shaking the surrounding country with the violence of an earthquake.

The miners who were changing
shifts underground scrambled for
the exits, and most of them made
a miraculous escape a few moments before the mine and the
buildings above it were reduced
to shambles. Rescue workers who rushed to the scene were relieved
to find that the majority of the
miners had made their escape and
all efforts were directed immediately toward saving those entombed
in the wrecked shaft.

The bodies of the known dead
were burned almost beyond recognition. It appeared the victims had met instant death. A number of the injured were reported in a critical condition.

Several hours after the blast it
was reported only a few miners
were still entombed in the wrecked
shaft, and rescue workers hoped
to reach them shortly. Although a large number were still unaccount-
ed for, it was believed a further
check-up would reveal they had escaped.

Among the first to arrive at the
scene were the wives, mothers
and children of the mine-workers.
Poignant scenes were witnessed as
one by one the charred bodies of
the victims were brought to the surface.

That the disaster was not greater
was attributed to the fact the
miners were changing shifts at the time the blast occurred.

Rescue workers, seriously
handicapped by white-hot flames
which burst from the wreckage of
possible.

In all, twenty-three bodies were recovered above ground. Some of them were believed to be those of
miners who had reached the surface after the first blast but had been killed by the benzine explosion.

JAMES WILSON FREE ON BOND; MAY FACE LIQUOR INDICTMENT

James H. Wilson, 36, colored, reputed bootlegger, who was bound over to the grand jury by Municipal Judge E. Dawson Smith last September 20 on a charge of transporting liquor, the charge being regarded as a third offense of violation of the liquor laws, obtained his release from the county jail Monday by furnishing $1,000 bond.

Prosecuting Attorney J. Carl Marshall disclosed that Wilson's case was not presented to the October grand jury because the negro cannot be prosecuted for third offense of liquor law violation until his conviction for second offense is definitely upheld by the higher courts.

Wilson was fined $750 and costs in the Springfield municipal court on a charge of transporting liquor and on last April 4 and was fined $500 and costs by Judge Smith here for possessing liquor. The conviction was possessing liquor was appealed and will be considered by the Greene County court of appeals which convenes in Common Pleas Court here Wednesday week.

Prosecutor Marshall announced that in the event the appellate court sustains the conviction and the ruling is made while he is still holding office as prosecuting attorney, he will at once recall the October grand jury in special session and seek an indictment against Wilson.

At the time he was held for grand jury action last September 20, Wilson was also fined $100 and costs and sentenced to five days in jail by Probate Judge S. C. Wright on a reckless driving charge, to which he pleaded guilty. He paid the assessment and served the required sentence.

HELD FOR MURDER

Here is James Dunn, of Wheeling, W. Va., one of the four men being held under first degree murder warrants in the New Martinsville, W. Va., jail in connection with the brutal killing of Garland Bailey, three, who was twisted to death and thrown into the Ohio River during a drunken party.

MEMBER OF BOARD

BELL RINGING TRIO ON LYCEUM COURSE

Jack Wood's Bell Ringing Trio, which is to appear on the Beaver Grange Lyceum course at K. of P. Hall, Alpha Wednesday evening, October 22, ranks easily as the best novelty company of its kind. Featuring particularly their bell ringing, other instrumental numbers are presented during the course of their program, and pleasing vocal selections are interspersed with humorous readings, so that there is a dash and spontaneity to their program that scores heavily with a popular audience.

Jack Wood, who heads the company, was originally with the famous Dunbar Bell Ringers, and since 1924 has conducted his own company yearly in transcontinental tours. The bells used by the Wood Trio were made by the same foundry that cast the great bells for Westminster Abbey and St. Paul's Cathedral in London. Selections on them are remarkable in their scope, ranging from such a powerful number as Rachmaninov's "Prelude in C Sharp Minor" to the liveliest of popular tunes.

MRS. W. E. COX TO ENTERTAIN W. M. S.

Mrs. W. E. Cox, N. King St., will entertain members of the Women's Missionary Society and the Ruth Guild of the First Presbyterian Church at a joint meeting Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Dr. Lindsay S. B. Hadley will be the special speaker assigned for this meeting. Dr. Hadley will discuss "Problems of the Work of the Spread of Christ's Kingdom."

Dr. Hadley's visit to the First Presbyterian Church, this city, is through an arrangement with the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A. in its educational program, which gives the different areas of the church a list of speakers for a period of time and a series of meetings. The Presbytery of Dayton, of which the local Presbyterian Church is a part, has the emphasis on foreign missions during October. Dr. Geo. H. Simonson, Hamilton, is chairman for this district and assigned Dr. Hadley to the Xenia church.

"All women of the church are invited to this meeting," according to Mrs. Paul D. Espey, president of the missionary society. "In order that we all might have the inspiration of the address of a former missionary, who is intimately acquainted with the problems of China and the church at home through his connection with the candidate department, in interviewing thousands of young people and discussing present day calls with them. We consider ourselves fortunate in having Dr. Hadley assigned to our society."

EDWIN GALLOWAY IS ATTACKED BY THUG; ASSAILANT FLEES

Edwin Galloway, prominent Xenia business man, experienced a hand-to-hand encounter about 10 o'clock Saturday night with a thug who attacked him from behind in his automobile in the rear of his home at 504 N. Galloway St., he reported to police.

Mr. Galloway had parked his machine in the alley behind the Galloway and Cherry furniture store on W. Main St., and believes the robber concealed himself in the rear of his car and awaited the return of the owner, who, in the darkness, observed nothing unusual as he drove home after closing the store for the night. The fact the rear window shade had been pulled down escaped his attention.

Arriving at his garage, Mr. Galloway alighted from the machine, switched on the light in the barn and re-entered his car, preparing to drive it inside.

Before he could shift gears, a pair of arms encircled his head and his assailant ordered him to "Shut off that light." Mr. Galloway was pulled back into the rear seat, where he grappled with the thug in the darkness for perhaps a minute before the man suddenly broke away, opened a door and fled up an alley toward N. West St.

MR. FORD

Henry Ford's latest proposal is to have factory employees spend two months of every year working on the farms. The farms, excessively manured already, may scorn the suggestion at first, but not for long. Factory trained men employed in the country would quickly revolutionize production methods there and we'd all benefit from that I am sure.

For instance a gang of hired men fresh from the factory, when ordered to harness a horse, would put on an assembly line. The first man would throw the harness over the horse's back, the second tuck the crupper under its tail, the third buckle the girth and so on, until the last one slipped a bit into the animal's mouth and drove it off the line under its own power. That is, maybe they would, till the farmer caught them at it. JOHN M. ORR, Detroit.

POLICE BUSY WITH MOVIE TICKET SALE

Have you been tracked down by police, placed under arrest and commanded to buy a ticket for the police benefit movie at the Orpheum Theater November 2, 3 and 4? If not, you can expect to be served with a warrant anytime from members of the Xenia Police Department are gunning for prospective customers with the price of a ticket in their pockets. The film is "Shooting Straight," a Radio Picture production featuring that big he-man matinee idol Richard Dix.

Police expect to buy new winter uniform overcoats with proceeds from the benefit movie, but if the ticket sale continues as in the past, they will be able to buy a second hand radio for the police station also. When a policeman approaches you now it is no indication that he has heard about that home brew in your cellar. He may only want to sell you a ticket.

MRS. W. E. COX TO ENTERTAIN W. M. S.

Mrs. W. E. Cox, N. King St., will entertain members of the Women's Missionary Society and the First Presbyterian Church at a joint meeting Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Dr. Lindsay S. B. Hadley will be the special speaker assigned for this meeting. Dr. Hadley will discuss "Problems of the Work of the Spread of Christ's Kingdom."

Dr. Hadley will visit to the First Presbyterian Church, this city, in an arrangement with the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A., in its educational program, which gives the different areas of the church a list of speakers for a period of time and a series of meetings. The Presbytery of Dayton, of which the First Presbyterian Church is a part, has the emphasis on foreign missions during October. Dr. Geo. H. Simonsen, Hamilton, is chairman for this district and assigned Dr. Hadley to the Xenia church.

"All women of the church are invited to this meeting," according to Mrs. Paul D. Espey, president of the missionary society. "In order that we all might have the inspiration of the address of a former missionary who is intimately acquainted with the problems of China and the church at home through his connection with the candidate department, in interviewing thousands of young people and discussing present-day calls with them. We consider ourselves fortunate in having Dr. Hadley assigned to our society."

EDWIN GALLOWAY IS ATTACKED BY THUG; ASSAILANT FLEES

Edwin Galloway, prominent Xenia business man, experienced a hand-to-hand encounter about 10 o'clock Saturday night with a thug who attacked him from behind in his automobile in the rear of his home at 504 N. Galloway St., he reported to police.

Mr. Galloway had parked his machine in the alley behind the Galloway and Cherry furniture store on W. Main St., and believes the robber concealed himself in the rear of his car and awaited the return of the owner, who, in the darkness, observed nothing unusual as he drove home after closing the store for the night. The fact the rear window shade had been pulled down escaped his attention.

Arriving at his garage, Mr. Galloway alighted from the machine, switched on the light in the barn and re-entered his car, preparing to drive it inside. Before he could shift gears, a pair of arms encircled his head and his assailant ordered him to "Shut off that light." Mr. Galloway was pulled back into the rear seat, where he grappled with the thug in the darkness for perhaps a minute before the man suddenly broke away, opened a door and fled up an alley toward N. West St.

Mrs. Albert Stark, who was walking along the sidewalk toward her home at 510 N. West St., observed the entire incident from the entrance to the alley and as the robber brushed past her in his flight, he pushed her through a hedge fence, then disappeared.

Because the encounter took place in the dark Mr. Galloway could not describe his assailant in his report to police, but Mrs. Stark, who had a fleeting glance of him, described the man as white and shabbily dressed.

Mr. Galloway's action in turning on the light in his garage is believed to have disconcerted the robber, who had not prepared for this. It is his theory the hidden man had first planned to make his attack when the car had been driven into the barn.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THE MORNING WATCH—And in the morning, rising up a great while before day, Jesus went out, and departed into a solitary place, and there prayed. And Simon and they that were with him followed after him. And when they had found him, they said unto him, All men seek for thee.—Mt 1:35,36,37.

CALLES IS BACK

For the second time since his retirement from the Mexican presidency, General P. E. Calles has gone back to the capital of his country in order to keep the established government on its feet, his action being in fulfillment of a pledge he made upon retiring from politics always to "be within call if he should be needed to preserve the integrity of the constitution and the revolution."

A year and a half ago Calles quit private life to go to Mexico City, take the portfolio of war and squelch the revolt of General Escobar, which he did quickly and effectively. The reason for his present re-appearance is hidden a little in mist, although it is known that he acted at the request of President Rubio, who believed he faced a serious crisis. The results of Calles' action, however, are plain and highly suggestive.

Portes Gil, former provisional president, has resigned the presidency of the National Revolutionary party (the party in power). Colonel Chazaro has quit his job as secretary to the president and is going to Europe. Luis Leon has given up his portfolio as secretary of industry, commerce and labor, and Dr. Casauranc is no longer chief of the federal district, but is somewhere across the Atlantic. These retirements followed a public warning by Calles that "persons who would not act in co-operation with the government and in keeping with the principles of the revolution must get out of public life," and that a breach of harmony within the ranks of the administration would not be tolerated. After the four resignations were announced, Senor Rubio reported that everything was lovely and his "health," which had been "poor," became restored. Presumably Calles has gone back to an interrupted "honeymoon on one of his ranches."

Mexico is extremely fortunate in possessing a man with the benevolent suppressive ability of General Calles and the disposition to serve his country in emergency after the fashion of the patriots of republican Rome, without immediately demanding power or a reward. But what will Mexico do when Senor Calles no longer is available to act as savior?

We can't help feeling that the person who considers it necessary to tell the world how good and how busy he is, lacks something of that inner consciousness which comes from a knowledge of duty wisely performed.

The national mind of France would be more at ease if it kept the national eyes of France on their own side of the Rhine. They can't look at Germany without seeing things.

NEWSPAPERMEN AREN'T CYNICAL

I've never known a cynic. Though I've heard many a man call himself a cynic, I've never known one who spoke the truth when he described himself thus—and I work in a business that's supposed to be the most cynical on earth. I've been on newspapers only since the war, but I've hung around newspaper offices for twenty-five years at least. I've known all kinds of newspapermen—pressmen, stereotypers, engravers, linotype men, make-up men and foremen, hustlers, division men and copy desk folk, editors, managing editors and publishers—and I've never yet met a newspaperman whose heart was as tough as his tongue, who thought as bitterly as he talked, who practiced the cynical faith he preached.

Years ago I confessed to a nice old lady that it was my ambition to be a "newspaperman" when I grew up. The old lady warned me against it. She told me that working on a newspaper would make me cynical. I'd see the seamy side of life—its tragedy, triviality, meanness and dirty politics—and I'd get hard and cynical like all other newspapermen. She'd read about them in books and she knew.

I thanked her but told her that while there were other people who might get cynical I was quite sure I wouldn't. . . And, well, I've been a newspaperman for quite a while, but I haven't met any of those "other people who might get cynical"—and recently, when tragedy struck the office where I work, I thought of that old lady and wished she could have known what people are really like.

It was a common enough tragedy. A young girl dead, her father broken by grief, a bunch of "hardboiled and cynical" men and women going through their work mechanically and silently . . . with lumps in their throats . . . pitying that father, wishing they could do something to ease his sorrow . . . saying to each other, over and over, "Isn't it tough about poor old Mac?"

They were getting out the paper, taking tragedy and froth over the phone, rushing from the office to get it, photograph it, secure it in print for their readers—going through the motions of being cynical and tough. And all the while they were just bewildered children, sensitive to suffering, wishing they could do something about the hurt, the pain, the sorrow that had come into the life of a man who had seemed one of the most cynical of them all.

And I thought to myself, "Nice old lady, you didn't know much. There in your little cottage you dreamed of wickedness that does not exist you were frightened by callousness that is as soft as your own gentle hands, you warned me against a cynicism I have never found. You were sorry for me—and now, after all these years, I find I am sorry for you, because never once in all your uneventful years came as close as I am this moment to the sweet, terrible, beautiful richness of Human Being."

Little-Old-Lady-Afraid of Life. You should have talked of cynical newspapermen—you were the nearest to being a cynic of anyone I've known!

THE QUESTION BOX

Central Press Wash. Bureau

Answers to questions of information and fact can be obtained by writing to Central Press Bureau, 1435 East Twelfth street, Cleveland, O., and enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope. No answers will be given to marital, medical or legal questions, nor will the estimated value of old coins be given.

What are the dimensions of the new Zeppelin dock at Akron, O.? Is it the largest in the world? The airship factory and dock for the construction and housing of the ZRS-4 and ZRS-5, super-Zeppelins being built for the United States navy at Akron, O., is the largest structure in the world without interior supports. The building is semi-paraboloid in shape and is 1,175 feet long between the center lines of door tracks; its width is 325 feet, center to center, and its height from the floor of the platform at the top is 211 feet. The dock covers eight and one-half acres. Previously the largest hangars in the United States were those at Lakehurst, N. J., and Belleville, Ill.

How many different languages are there in the world? There are said to be 3,424 spoken languages and dialects in the world, distributed as follows: America, 1,624; Asia, 937; Europe, 387; and Africa, 276. The actual number of languages recently computed by officers of the French academy is put at 2,796. The English language is spoken by more than 180,000,000 people and it is understood and used by 60,000,000 more who do not consider it their native speech.

How are mirrors silvered? After both surfaces of the glass have been made perfectly smooth, the glass is washed with distilled water and thoroughly cleansed. Nitrate of silver is dissolved in water, to which ammonia is added, and is precipitated by a solution of Rochelle salts or tartaric acid. The glass is placed on warm tables and the solution poured over it. The heat helps the silver to precipitate and adhere to the glass. The silver back receives a coat of shellac and then of paint or asphaltum varnish containing white lead, which completes the process. For many centuries mirrors were made with a backing of amalgam of mercury and tin, but this process produced an unsatisfactory mirror.

What kind of postage stamp was used in the year 1824? Postage stamps did not come into use until 1847, when adhesive stamps were first introduced into the United States. On account of the high rate of postage and the provision allowing optional prepayment, they did not come into general use until 1855, when the rates were reduced and prepayment required.

Was there a cross-country marathon derby before the one promoted by C. C. Pyle? Records do not show any professional cross-country foot race before the first one promoted by C. C. Pyle, and in which Andrew Payne, of Claremore, Okla., was victorious.

NEW YORK.—Some years ago, when man's socks wrinkle and ruffle down around his ankles it was a sure indication that life had lapsed.

Nowadays, a wrinkled sock is the badge of youth—one of the numerous ways the modern kid has of flaunting musty, moth-eaten convention.

BABY RACKETEERS

Side streets fringing the theatrical district, where parking is permitted nights, are infested by a board of young racketeers between the ages of eight and sixteen who hop to the curb as you drive up, volunteering to "watch your car, mister," while you're attending the play.

The average New Yorker, trained to submission in all sorts of graft, weakly pays toll to these juvenile pirates, knowing that refusal of their solicitation will result in half a dozen nails jammed into his tires.

A little time and trouble might abate the nuisance; but the Man-About-Town—Tamm—Town would rather disgorge two bits and then try to salvage his self respect by observing that "After all, they're only a lot of poor, benighted gutter snipes!"

—CHARLES P. STEWART—

WASHINGTON.—Chairman Fred Britten, "is all right when it is made—with the whole horizon peaceful. Its signatories are perfectly sincere—when they sign it. But it can't survive a clash of vital interests."

What ought to be done not interest him; that's theory. Few, if any, other congressmen, however, can see what is with the microscopic clearness of the Ninth Illinois district representative's vision.

For instance: Contrast the Chicagoan's mental processes, on the subject of naval limitation, with those of Representative George Huddleston of Birmingham (Ala.). I suggest Congressman Huddleston for the comparison, because he seems to me to be the foremost exponent of what might be described as the spiritual school of thought on Capitol Hill, whereas Congressman Britten pre-eminently is of the material school.

Curiously enough, Representatives Britten and Huddleston are in a certain sort of agreement on the naval question—though I doubt whether they know it. That is to say, though he obviously abhors the very idea of war, the southern lawmaker is not a blind naval reductionist. For one thing, as he has told me, he is no believer in the theory that a lack of military equipment is any guaranty against warfare. He is not an internationalist, either; while far from being a jingo, he is quite decidedly nationalistic.

The Chicagoan, conversely, is not an insatiable warship advocate, but favors holding the country's armordrums down to what he considers absolute essentials, being too good a business man to like spending money on mere naval splurge.

Representative Britten's notion of maritime necessity doubtless is larger than Representative Huddleston's still, in this respect they do not travel in diametrically opposite directions. The issue upon which they are as wide apart as the poles concerns the relative value of treaties and of the actual scrapping of war craft as pacifying influences.

Treaties do not mean much to Representative Britten. Scrapping men-of-war, unaccompanied by a change of heart on the part of the scrappers, does not signify much to Representative Huddleston.

"Nations will fight, when they have occasion to fight, if they have the will to fight," says the Alabama congressman, "with whatever weapons are available."

"Minus battleships, they can fight with merchantmen while battleships are building."

"The will for peace is the only safeguard against warfare."

"Scrapping war vessels, on condition that the possible enemy does likewise, may be solely a mutual economy. Or it may be a genuinely friendly gesture. Yet, as a gesture, it is no more convincing than a treaty."

"A treaty," says Representative Milady's gold fish disport, uncramped by the artificial barriers most city-bred fish are forced to put up with. From the spacious living room on the floor below their loving mistress is enabled to survey the gyrations of her finny pets. And should the caprice seize her, a staircase permits a perfect close-up.

So live that some day you may turn into a Park Avenue gold fish.

Chicagoan, "what the dries expect to ask next year, for prohibition enforcement?"

"Eleven millions."

"If I can help it, that's not going to come out of the navy."

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

—By MRS. MARY MORTON—

MENU HINT

Stuffed Veal Heart Baked Potatoes
Cauliflower en Casserole
Vegetable Salad
Ginger Pudding With Marshmallow Sauce

Milk Everything cooked in the oven, you see, with the exception of the salad. This menu will serve four or more.

Today's Recipes

Stuffed Heart.—Select a nice veal heart. Soak in salt water at least an hour to draw out blood. Make your favorite poultry dressing, using eight or ten slices of bread. Stuff cavities of heart and sear lightly in baking pan. Add about a half cup of water to fryings and roast for about an hour and a half or until nearly tender. Then pile the remaining dressing around the heart in the baking pan and return to oven for a half hour longer.

Ginger Pudding With Marshmallow Sauce.—One-half cup brown sugar, one-half cup shortening, one cup molasses, one egg, one-half cup boiling water, one teaspoon baking soda, one-half cup seedless raisins, two cups flour, one teaspoon each allspice and cinnamon.

Sauce.—One tablespoon gelatin, one tablespoon cold water, one-half cup sifted powdered sugar, white of one egg, one and one-half cups rich milk, one teaspoon vanilla, salt, one teaspoon ginger. Heat molasses and dissolve in the shortening and sugar. Sift spices and flour. Stir flour into molasses, add fruit, beaten egg and baking soda dissolved in boiling water. Bake in a slow oven 50 or 60 minutes. Soak gelatin in cold water five minutes, then dissolve by placing dish over boiling water. Mix with milk and beat hard, then add by beating the sugar, stiffly beaten egg white, salt, vanilla. This sauce will be about like whipped cream. Cut cake in squares and put sauce on top and around sides of each serving. Can be served hot or cold.

TASTY AND PRETTY

Year Round Salad Shred cabbage very fine and arrange in nests on salad plates. In the center pile cubes of banana with diced apple, sections of orange, and seeded Tokay grapes. Serve with boiled dressing and garnish the top with a few raisins.

Boxed Jelly

Put glasses of jelly in a shoe box or large candy box, marking the kind of jelly on the box itself. Set the boxes on the shelves in the fruit cellar. Different kinds of jelly are kept separate. It is easier to mark on box than a dozen glasses, and when you want to put clean papers on the shelves you only have to move a few boxes instead of handling many glasses.

Tomato Relish for Small Family Ten large tomatoes, scalded and peeled, two medium-sized onions, one small red pepper. Grind the tomatoes and onion in a food chopper. Then add one and one-half cups vinegar, one cup sugar, quarter teaspoon of cloves. Boil until mixture thickens, and bottle hot.

No Sudden Diet Change Necessary

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

"FOR THE prospective mother no counsel is more important than this: Put yourself at once under the care of a physician." So says Dr. J. Morris Slemmons in his excellent book, "The Prospective Mother." (Published by D. Appleton & Co.)

The advice applies as much to diet as to any other part of the expectant mother's care. Some doctors are more particular than others about the details of diet, but whatever the doctor orders is the result of his own successful experience, plus the individual needs of the particular case before him. No writer of a column or book of advice can possibly know about the latter factor. Hence all such printed advice must be of a general character and secondary in value to the individualized advice of your own doctor.

For this reason, in the two previous articles we have discussed the general principles which underlie the planning of a diet during pregnancy. Today we come to more particular details. In general, most doctors today agree upon those details, so that it is likely we will not differ very radically from the advice your doctor gives you.

First, no radical change should be made in the prospective mother's diet, either as to the kind of food or amount. It is always a good dietetic rule for anybody or any condition not to make a sudden change.

During the first half of the pregnancy the mother's digestive system is likely to be upset, and the appetite should not be forced. During the last half the appetite is likely to be very keen, and must not be unduly indulged. It is well for the mother to weigh herself regularly and to try to keep the weight gain around half a pound a week during the last five months.

All the food principles—(1) carbohydrates (starches), (2) sugars (meat, eggs, milk), and (3) fat should be eaten. Fat should be avoided more than under ordinary circumstances. Authorities agree that too much fat in the mother's diet tends to make a fat baby and hence a large baby, and hence a difficult delivery.

Water is the only thing that perhaps should be forced. Water will flush the kidneys, keep up elimination, and perhaps prevent some of the poisonings of the pregnant state.

Certain minerals are needed to be increased in the mother's diet, because they must be supplied to the baby's body. Calcium goes into the building of bones. It is available in skimmed milk. The mother should drink at least one glass of skimmed milk a day.

Iron and phosphorus are needed for blood and nervous system building. Sherman is of the opinion that the average American diet is more likely to be deficient in phosphorus than any other food element. It can be supplied in beef, eggs, white bread and oatmeal. Iron is present in many green vegetables.

(EDITORS NOTE: Dr. Glendening cannot diagnose or give personal answers to letters from readers. Where questions are of general interest, however, they will be taken up, in order, in the daily column. Address your queries to Dr. Logan Clendening, care of this paper. Write legibly and not over 200 words.)

Bullying Often Covers Complex

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

THE BULLY, whether man, woman or child, is very tormenting. He need not be the kind of brute that physically assaults smaller, weaker persons. He may just bully with his tongue and by his actions.

For instance, the one who takes the superior attitude toward his fellows, implying that his companions are dumb-bells. The one who bawls another out for the slightest untoward action and expects that one to accept unquestioningly anything he may do.

How do they get that way? Heaven only knows. Sometimes it is a mask to cover up a very real inferiority complex. They think that by assuming an air of superiority you will never guess that they really are ignorant and not at all sure of themselves. They are very much afraid of the opinion of their fellows and so assume a confident air.

A little girl writes: "DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I am a junior in high school and am having a hard time with my boy friend. He thinks I am too dumb to be living, and I'll admit I am at times. But he seems to like me just the same."

"He likes to be the head of everything and I like to have some say in it, too, which I think I should. He bawls me out when he sees fit, and I am getting tired of it. I don't want to give him the air because I like him too well."

"After going together a year he figures he should start going out with other girls, and I don't like the idea. He has planned to go out with a girl this week, and I told him I had a date, too; but I can't stand it to see him go out with another girl. He says as long as I go out with good company whom he knows, it is all right. He won't tell me whom he is going out with."

"DUMB-BELL."

I am afraid I can't make him quit going with other girls, my dear, but I can advise you to go with other boys. By all means accept the date. He may feel differently about the matter if he actually sees you out with another boy. If he is going out with other girls, anyway, you better not sit at home. You may not enjoy going out with others, but, on the other hand, you may be pleasantly surprised. Another boy may appreciate you more and not try to make you feel inferior.

A bully for a husband is anything but pleasant. So try to cure him before it is too late by asserting your independence. And don't let him get away with calling you a dumb-bell. We are all stupid at times, but it isn't others to call it to our attention. Rather, they should try to cover up our mistakes if they are our real friends.

"LONESOME." It does seem sometimes as if the boys prefer their girl friends noisy and vulgar, doesn't it, Lonesome? You'll have to forget about yourself and study what the boys are interested in. What do you talk about when with your girl friends? You never have trouble in chatting with them, do you? Well, the boys are interested in practically the same things—games, school, books people you all know, things you are doing and planning to do your careers, etc. I think you'll find that your trouble will vanish as you grow older and have more interests. Don't grow noisy and coarse, will you, dear, or even try to try to attract them. You are not even thinking of such a thing, so I need not have mentioned it.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES Permanent Wave G. E. S.: Your hair was probably in an unhealthy condition before you had it permanently waved. Set your wave frequently, and it will look more presentable.

Shampoos Thankful and Worried: My "Beauty Culture" booklet contains a number of excellent shampoos and rinses for the hair. I have not sufficient space to print them here.

Serawny Wrist Loretta K. A. A. Isabelle and Daily Reader: Massage your wrists nightly with warmed cocoa butter. I shall be glad to forward to you the booklet you request upon receipt of 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

EDITOR'S NOTE: While it is impossible for Miss Glad to answer beauty questions by mail, she will be happy to send you her pamphlet on "The New Figure" and self-addressed, stamped envelope, and 10 cents in coin for each to cover cost of printing and mailing. Personal questions on beauty will be answered through Miss Glad's daily column.

After the four resignations were announced, Senor Rubio reported that everything was lovely and his "health," which had been "poor," became restored. Presumably Calles has gone back to an interrupted "honeymoon on one of his ranches."

Mexico is extremely fortunate in possessing a man with the beneficent suppressive ability of General Calles and the disposition to serve his country in emergency after the fashion of the patriots of republican Rome, without immediately demanding power or a reward. But what will Mexico do when Senor Calles no longer is available to act as savior?

We can't help feeling that the person who considers it necessary to tell the world how good and how busy he is, lacks something of that inner consciousness which comes from a knowledge of duty wisely performed.

The national mind of France would be more at ease if it kept the national eyes of France on their own side of the Rhine. They can't look at Germany without seeing things.

NEWSPAPERMEN AREN'T CYNICAL

I've never known a cynic. Though I've heard many a man call himself a cynic, I've never known one who spoke the truth when he described himself thus—and work in a business that's supposed to be the most cynical on earth.

I've been on newspapers only since the war, but I've hung around newspaper offices for twenty-five years at least. I've known all kinds of newspapermen—pressmen, stereotypers, engravers, linotype men, make-up men and foremen, hustlers, division men and copy desk folk, city editors, managing editors and publishers—and I've never yet met a newspaperman whose heart was as tough as his tongue, who thought as bitterly as he talked, who practiced the cynical faith he preached.

Years ago I confessed to a nice old lady that it was my ambition to be a "newspaperman" when I grew up. The old lady warned me against it. She told me that working on a newspaper would make me cynical. I'd see the seamy side of life—its tragedy, triviality, meanness and dirty politics—and I'd get hard and cynical like all other newspapermen. She'd read about them in books and she knew.

I thanked her but told her that while there were other people who might get cynical I was quite sure I wouldn't. . . . And, well, I've been a newspaperman for quite a while, but I haven't met any of those "other people who might get cynical"—and recently, when tragedy struck the office where I work, I thought of that old lady and wished she could have known what people are really like.

It was a common enough tragedy. A young girl dead, her father broken by grief, a bunch of "hardboiled and cynical" men and women going through their work mechanically and silently . . . with lumps in their throats . . . pitying that father, wishing they could do something to ease his sorrow . . . saying to each other, over and over, "Isn't it tough about poor old Mac?"

They were getting out the paper, taking tragedy and froth over the phone, rushing from the office to get it, photograph it, secure it in print for their readers—going through the motions of being cynical and tough. And all the while they were just bewildered children, sensitive to suffering, wishing they could do something about the hurt, the pain, the sorrow that had come into the life of a man who had seemed one of the most cynical of them all.

And I thought to myself, "Nice old lady, you didn't know much. There in your little cottage you dreamed of wickedness that does not exist you were frightened by callousness that is as soft as your own gentle hands, you warned me against a cynicism I have never found. You were sorry for me—and now, after all these years, I find I am sorry for you, because never once in all your uneventful years came as close as I am this moment to the sweet, terrible, beautiful richness of Human Beings."

Little-Old-Lady-Afraid of Life. You should have talked of cynical newspapermen—you were the nearest to being a cynic of anyone I've known!

Answers to questions of information and fact can be obtained by writing to Central Press Bureau, 1435 East Twelfth street, Cleveland, O., and enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope. No answers will be given to marital, medical or legal questions, nor will the estimated value of old coins be given.

What are the dimensions of the new Zeppelin dock at Akron, O.? Is it the largest in the world? The airship factory and dock for the construction and housing of the ZRS-4 and ZRS-5, super-Zeppelins being built for the United States navy at Akron, O., is the largest structure in the world without interior supports. The building is semi-paraboloid in shape and is 1,175 feet long between the center lines of door tracks; its width is 325 feet, center to center, and its height from the floor of the platform at the top is 211 feet. The dock covers eight and one-half acres. Previously the largest hangars in the United States were those at Lakehurst, N. J., and Belleville, Ill.

Languages
How many different languages are there in the world? There are said to be 3,424 spoken languages and dialects in the world, distributed as follows: America, 1,624; Asia, 937; Europe, 587, and Africa, 276. The actual number of languages recently computed by officers of the French academy is put at 2,796. The English language is spoken by more than 180,000,000 people and it is understood and used by 60,000,000 more who do not consider it their native speech.

Mirrors
How are mirrors silvered? After both surfaces of the glass have been made perfectly smooth, the glass is washed with distilled water and thoroughly cleaned. Nitrate of silver is dissolved in water, to which ammonia is added, and is precipitated by a solution of Rochelle salts or tartaric acid. The glass is placed on warm tables and the solution poured over it. The heat helps the silver to precipitate and adhere to the glass. The silver back receives a coat of shellac and then of paint or asphaltum varnish containing white lead, which completes the process. For many centuries mirrors were made with a backing of amalgam of mercury and tin, but this process produced an unsatisfactory mirror.

Stamps
What kind of postage stamp was used in the year 1824? Postage stamps did not come into use until 1847, when adhesive stamps were first introduced into the United States. On account of the high rate of postage and the provision allowing optional prepayment, they did not come into general use until 1855, when the rates were reduced and prepayment required.

Marathon
Was there a cross-country marathon derby before the one promoted by C. C. Pyle? Records do not show any professional cross-country foot race before the first one promoted by C. C. Pyle, and in which Andrew Payne, of Claremore, Okla., was victorious.

NEW YORK—Some years ago, when a man let his socks wrinkle and ruffle down around his ankles it was a sure indication that life had lapsed. Nowadays, a wrinkled sock is the badge of youth—one of the numerous ways the modern kid has of flaunting musty, moth-eaten convention.

Side streets fringing the theatrical district, where parking is permitted nights, are infested by a board of young racketeers between the ages of eight and sixteen who hop to the curb as you drive up, volunteering to "watch yer car, mister," while you're attending the play.

A little time and trouble might abate the nuisance; but the Man-About-Town—Tammam—Town would rather disgorge two bits and then try to salvage his self respect by observing that, "After all, they're only a lot of poor, benighted gutter snipes!"

No Sudden Diet Change Necessary

"FOR THE prospective mother no counsel is more important than this: Put yourself at once under the care of a physician." So says Dr. J. Morris Silemons in his excellent book, "The Prospective Mother." (Published by D. Appleton & Co.)

The advice applies as much to diet as to any other part of the expectant mother's care. Some doctors are more particular than others about the details of diet, but whatever the doctor orders is the result of his own successful experience, plus the individual needs of the particular case before him. No writer of a column or book of advice can possibly know about the latter factor. Hence all such printed advice must be of a general character and secondary in value of the individualized advice of your own doctor.

For this reason, in the two previous articles we have discussed the general principles which underlie the planning of a diet during pregnancy. Today we come to more particular details. In general, most doctors today agree upon those details, so that it is likely we will not differ very radically from the advice your doctor gives you.

First, no radical change should be made in the prospective mother's diet, either as to the kind of food or amount. It is always a good dietetic rule for any body or any condition not to make a sudden change.

During the first half of the pregnancy the mother's digestive system is likely to be upset, and the appetite should not be forced. During the last half the appetite is likely to be very keen, and must not be unduly indulged. It is well for the mother to, weigh herself regularly and to try to keep the weight gain around half a pound a week during the last five months. All the food principles—(1) carbohydrates (starches, sugars, vegetables, fruits, etc.); (2) protein (meat, eggs, milk); and (3) fat—should be eaten. Fat should be avoided more than under ordinary circumstances. Authorities agree that too much fat in the mother's diet tends to make a fat baby and hence a large baby, and hence a difficult delivery.

(EDITORS NOTE: Dr. Clending cannot diagnose or give personal answers to letters from readers. Where questions are of general interest, however, they will be taken up in order in the daily column. Address your queries to Dr. Logan Clendingning, care of this paper. Write legibly and not over 200 words.)

Bullying Often Covers Complex

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

THE BULLY, whether man, woman or child, is very tormenting. He need not be the kind of brute that physically assaults smaller, weaker persons. He may just bully with his tongue and by his actions. For instance, the mother who takes the superior attitude toward his fellows, implying that his companions are dumb-bells. The one who bawls another out for the slightest untoward action and expects that one to accept unquestioningly anything he may do.

How do they get that way? Heaven only knows. Sometimes it is a mask to cover up a very real inferiority complex. They think that by assuming an air of superiority they will never guess that they really are ignorant and not at all sure of themselves. They are very much afraid of the opinion of their fellows and so assume a confident air.

A little girl writes: "DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I am a junior in high school and am having a hard time with my boy friend. He thinks I am too dumb to be living, and I'll admit I am at times. But he seems to like me just the same."

"He likes to be the head of everything and I like to have some say in it, too, which I think I should. He bawls me out when he says fit, and I am getting tired of it. I don't want to give him the air because I like him too well."

"After going together a year he figures he should start going out with other girls, and I don't like the idea. He has planned to go out with a girl this week, and I told him I had a date, too; but I can't stand it to see him go out with another girl. He says as long as I go out with good company whom he knows, it is all right. He won't tell me whom he is going out with."

I am afraid I "DUMB-BELL" him quit going with other girls, my

"LONESOME"

It does seem sometimes as if the boys prefer their friends noisy and vulgar, doesn't it, Lonesome? You'll have to forget about yourself and study what the boys are interested in. What do you talk about when with your girl friend? You never have trouble in chatting with them, do you? Well, the boys are interested in practically the same things—games, school, books, people you all know, things you are doing and planning to do, your careers, etc. I think you'll find that your trouble will vanish as you grow older and have more interests. Don't grow noisy and coarse, will you, dear, or even try to, to attract. It won't work and you'll be sorry. Of course you are not even thinking of such a thing, so I need not have mentioned it.

Foot Health Contributes To Beauty

By GLADYS GLAD

In one of my recent articles I stated that overweight and underweight often result from poor foot health. You may wonder how foot troubles could be responsible for underweight or overweight. But it cannot be said that many men and women with their health normal, and their weight adjusted, after the correction of defects in their pedal extremities.

An authority on foot conditions offers a very lucid explanation of the relation between foot health and weight. He says that when there is an involuntary disturbance of the foot that causes pain when walking or standing, very often the afflicted individual becomes listless and despondent. This lessens his physical activity, and as a result, the muscles throughout the body relax and are converted into fat.

On the other hand, where such a condition of foot health exists, and the sufferer is compelled to do any amount of walking or standing, the pressure on the great sciatic nerve becomes so great that it leads up to a general nervous condition. This makes the sufferer neurasthenic and high strung, and causes a noticeable loss of weight.

Flat feet, fallen arches, muscle strain and other foot defects can cause a loss or acquisition of weight. When the feet are abused to such an extent that they are unable to support the body in a normal manner, there is muscular relaxation and loss of tone everywhere. This often results in the loss of weight or the increase of weight, depending upon the way in which the foot reaction affects the other parts of the body.

The majority of foot defects result from ill-fitting shoes. We all

WASHINGTON—Chairman Fred A. Britten of the naval affairs committee of the house of representatives is so logical a reasoner, along strictly practical lines, that it is a delight to listen to him.

What OUGHT to be does not interest him; that's theory. Few, if any, other congressmen, however, can see what IS with the microscopic gleamers of the Ninth Illinois district representative's vision.

Contrast the Chicagoan's mental processes, on the subject of naval limitation, with those of Representative George Huddleston of Birmingham (Ala.).

I suggest Congressman Huddleston for the comparison because he seems to me to be the foremost exponent of what might be described as the spiritual school of thought on Capitol Hill, where as Congressman Britten pre-eminently is of the material school.

Curiously enough, Representatives Britten and Huddleston are in a certain sort of agreement on the naval question—though I doubt whether they know it. That is to say, though he obviously abhors the very idea of war, the southern lawmaker is not a blind naval reductionist. For one thing, as he has told me, he is no believer in the theory that a lack of military equipment is any guaranty against warfare. He is not an internationalist, either; while far from being a jingo, he is quite decidedly nationalistic.

The Chicagoan, conversely, is not an insatiable warship advocate, but favors holding the country's armories down to what he considers absolute essentials, being too good a business man to like spending money on mere naval splurge.

Representative Britten's notion of maritime necessity doubtless is larger than Representative Huddleston's; still, in this respect they do not travel in diametrically opposite directions. The issue upon which they are as wide apart as the poles concerns the relative value of treaties and of the actual scrapping of war craft as pacifying influences.

Treaties do not mean much to Representative Britten. Scrapping men-o-war, unaccompanied by a change of heart on which they are as wide apart as the poles, does not signify much to Representative Huddleston.

"Minus battleships, they can fight with merchantmen while battleships are building. The will for peace is the only safeguard against warfare. "Scrapping war vessels, on condition that the possessor, enemy or ally, may be solely a mutual economy. Or it may be a genuinely friendly gesture. Yet, as a gesture, it is no more convincing than a treaty."

"A treaty," says Representative

Peter's Adventures

By Mrs. Florence Smith Vincent

GRATEFUL COWS

To drink or not to drink, that was the question. Should Peter be polite and accept the drop of milk held out to him on the tip of Busy's antenna? Or should he risk offending his friend, the Worker Ant, by refusing to sip. In a second he had decided. He might not like the milk, but at any rate it could do him no harm—just one single drop. Peter bent his head and drank the drop of milk. And Peter was surprised.

"Why is this milk so sweet?" cried he. And Busy stared at the boy, as if she thought her guest suddenly had gone crazy.

"Fine milk, sweet milk," mimicked the Worker Ant. "What did you think it would be?"

"How should I know?" Peter defended himself. "Your pastures are not like our pastures, your cows are different. There's no good reason why your milk should have agreed with me. But it does. It tastes as sweet as honey. I like it, and to prove it I am going to milk a cow myself."

True to his word, Peter did as Busy had done, and with a forefinger gently stroked a tiny aphid. To the boy, even as to Busy, the grateful cow gave a drop of sweet milk. One drop of milk at a time, is not very filling, and for some time all was still in the cow pasture as Busy and the boy made the rounds of the cattle and "milked" for their supper.

"Milk is a hard job in my country," laughed Peter. "But there's nothing to it, down in the Ants' cow pasture."

"Our cows like us too much to 'hold out on us,'" chuckled Busy.

Vegetable Salad
Ginger Pudding With Marshmallow Sauce
Milk Coffee
Everything cooked in the oven, you see, with the exception of the salad. This menu will serve four or more.

Today's Recipes

Stuffed Heart—Select a nice veal heart. Soak in salt water at least an hour to draw out blood. Make your favorite poultry dressing, using eight or ten slices of bread. Stuff cavities of heart and sear lightly in baking pan. Add about a half cup of water to fryings and roast for about an hour and a half or until nearly tender. Then pile the remaining dressing around the heart in the baking pan and return to oven for a half hour longer.

Ginger Pudding With Marshmallow Sauce—One-half cup brown sugar, one-half cup shortening, one cup molasses, one egg, one-half cup boiling water, one teaspoon baking soda, one-half cup seedless raisins, two cups flour, one teaspoon each allspice and cinnamon.

Sauce—One tablespoon gelatin, one tablespoon cold water, one-half cup sifted powdered sugar, white of one egg, one and one-half cups rich milk, one teaspoon vanilla, salt, one teaspoon ginger. Heat molasses and dissolve in it the shortening and sugar. Stir spices and flour. Stir flour into molasses, add fruit, beat in egg and baking soda dissolved in boiling water. Bake in a slow oven 50 or 60 minutes. Soak gelatin in cold water five minutes, then dissolve by placing dish over boiling water. Mix with milk and beat hard, then add the sugar, salt, vanilla. This sauce will be about like whipped cream. Cut cake in squares and put sauce on top and around sides of each serving. Can be served hot or cold.

Year Round Salad

Shred cabbage very fine and arrange in nests on salad plates. In the center pile cubes of banana with diced apple, sections of orange, sliced celery and raisins. Serve with boiled dressing and garnish the top with a few raisins.

Boxed Jelly

Put glasses of jelly in a shoe box or large candy box, marking the kind of jelly on the box itself. Set the boxes on the shelves in the fruit cellar. Different kinds of jelly are kept separate. It is easier to mark on box than a dozen glasses, and when you want to put clean papers on the shelves you only have to move a few boxes instead of handling many glasses.

Tomato Relish for Small Family
Ten large tomatoes, scalded and peeled, two medium-sized onions, one small red pepper. Grind the whole through food chopper. Then add one and one-half cups vinegar, one cup sugar, quarter teaspoon of cloves. Boil until mixture thickens, and bottle hot.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

by Phil

Xenia Central High's injury-ridden football team is preparing to "shoot the works" against Miamisburg here Friday afternoon in an effort to terminate the school's thirteen-game losing streak on the gridiron, and incidentally, hang up its first Miami Valley League victory in the last two seasons.

The Bucs have been hounded by misfortune but the old morale is still present and the team will be out there Friday plugging away and doing its best to register a victory.

Unless some new bit of ill luck crops up this week, Central High footballers and students will be a trifle disappointed. It has been one jolt after another.

First it was Jimmie Ralls, end, who was injured and will probably not be in shape to play before next week. Then Howard Thompson, big fullback, suffered a dislocated shoulder in the Withrow game and will be lost to the team for the remainder of the year. Kinsey, veteran tackle, also retired from the Withrow game with injuries after playing his best game of the season and it is not safe to say what shape he will be in by Friday. Several other players are in only fair condition.

The Xenia-Miamisburg tilt Friday will be the fifth football party between the two schools since gridiron relations were opened in 1920. In four games played since then, Xenia teams have won three times and the Burgers once. Xenia won in 1920 by a score of 19 to 7 and in 1921, the margin being 20 to 0. After an interval of six years, the schools met in football again in 1928, Xenia winning, 14 to 7. Last season the Burgers beat the bucs, 25 to 0.

Cannonading will be heavy along the Miami Valley League front this week end with Miamisburg facing Xenia here Friday and Greenville traveling to Piqua and Troy visiting Sidney on Saturday. Troy, the surprise team of the league, has held Greenville to a scoreless tie and beaten Miamisburg, and should have no trouble with Sidney, which will probably be just another team in the field. Piqua should defeat Greenville by a small margin and there is nothing to indicate Miamisburg will lose to Xenia.

"Bunny" Purdon has been hinting so much about being an expert football prophet that we have reprinted and will let him pick or rather attempt to pick the winners of twenty-three games this week end. "Bunny" has been drawing up a list of games and selecting probable winners for his own satisfaction ever since the season began and should be pretty good at it by this time. Time alone will tell. He may have a tough time explaining some of these predictions to the boys at Harness Cigar Store, however.

BOWLING

The Greene County Lumber Co. bowling team, annual leader of the Recreation League, extended its latest winning streak to six straight games by winning three in a row from the Lang Chevrolet Co. Monday night. The city champions have now won twenty out of a possible twenty-one games this season. The winners totaled 2,786 for the three games but Langs were not far behind with 2,703. Brickel delivered himself of a 630 series and Price topped the losers with 599. Box score:

KEEP ONE POINT OF THE BALL IN THE PALM OF YOUR HAND AND THE OTHER UNDER THE ARMPIT

JACK ELDER

Elder shows right way to carry ball for end run or through broken field.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of a series of articles on "Good Football," written through the Central Press Association for this newspaper by Jack Elder, former Notre Dame gridiron star.

Ex-Notre Dame Football Star

Now Central Press Football Writer

Suppose you were in the big football game of the year and had gotten away from the pack for what looked like a touchdown, when the safety man on the opponents' team tackled you and knocked the ball from your hands.

Would you be sore when you heard the groan go up from the crowd? Naturally you would, but if you were anxious to improve your game and had the right kind of stuff in you you would shake off the result of that misplay and ask yourself this question:

"What caused me to fumble that ball?"

And most likely you could answer your own question with, "I wasn't holding it right."

To hold the ball correctly for end runs and open field running hold one end of the ball in the palm of the hand and the other

NEVER DO THIS!—This is the WRONG way to carry a football on end run or through broken field. Elder tells you the right way!

With the ball held by the ends as shown in the photo, one end in the hand and the other under the arm, it is practically impossible to lose. No matter how hard you may be tackled or how hard the ball itself may be hit you can always hang onto it.

But suppose you hold it in the way it is held in the drawing? Held that way it is as hard to hold as a greased pig. In fact, if you are tackled at all hard, four out of five times you will lose the ball. It will scoot away from you like a cake of soap in a wet hand.

Quite often during a game an opponent may try to "steal" the ball from you while beneath a pile of linemen, but if it is being held as shown in the photograph it will still be yours when the referee digs you out of the heap.

Therefore, always remember this little thought:

"I am not carrying a loaf of bread home to my mother but am carrying a precious burden which may win this old ball game if I succeed in carrying it across the line for a touchdown."

end in the hollow made by the arm and body, which is the armpit. The other hand should be used for stiff arming.

However, when plunging through the line the ball is held by both hands folded under the ball, protecting it from any chance blow that may cause it to be fumbled. An end of the ball is held in each hand with the right hand near the left armpit and the left hand near the right armpit.

With the ball held by the ends as shown in the photo, one end in the hand and the other under the arm, it is practically impossible to lose. No matter how hard you may be tackled or how hard the ball itself may be hit you can always hang onto it.

LUTHERAN LADIES AID TO OBSERVE ITS ANNIVERSARY

Plans are now being made by the anniversary committee of the Ladies Aid Society of the First Lutheran Church to celebrate the thirty-fourth birthday of the organization in the Sunday School rooms of the church, 303 W. Main St., November 12, beginning at 4 p. m.

Hostesses will be Mrs. Theron White, Mrs. C. F. Mella, and Mrs. Kenneth Witham. Special tribute will be paid to two charter members of the organization as well as several other women who have continued faithful membership over a long period of years.

Final arrangements were recently completed by Mrs. F. F. Filson, Mrs. Walter Maxwell and Mrs. William Bone, for a chicken supper to be served to the public, Thursday between 5 and 7 p. m. The event will be held at the church. Special music and entertainment for the children will be provided for the guests.

CHURCH MEN'S CLUB WILL HEAR SPEAKER

The first meeting of the season of the Men's Club of the First Presbyterian Church will be held Thursday evening, according to invitations sent out Monday. Dr. L. S. B. Hadley, New York, will be the guest speaker of the evening and his subject will be "Modern Men and Modern Christianity."

The committee in charge of the dinner met last Friday evening to complete plans. A pot roast beef dinner will be served at 6:15 o'clock, the cover charge being sixty cents a person. Reservations are to be made as soon as possible with A. V. Miller, Members of the committee are: Dr. Paul D. Espey, F. L. Smith, A. V. Miller, Paul Cox, Rudolph Weber and George P. Tiffany.

WILLAMAN WILL WORRY FOR TWO WEEKS BEFORE NEXT CONTEST

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 21.—Coach Sam Willaman and his saddened Buckeyes made preparations for the last half of the 1930 football schedule today, although Ohio State will be idle this Saturday.

It may be good for all parties concerned that the scarlet team does not see action this week. The injured players will have ample time to recover from their hurts and bruises, and there will be two weeks in which to prepare for the homecoming game with Wisconsin.

A lot can be done in two weeks. Besides giving Willaman many sleepless nights, these two weeks will afford an opportunity to form a backfield that has scoring punch. That's what was lacking in the Michigan game. It was a bitter pill to swallow, that 13-to-0 defeat at the hands of Ohio's most traditional rival, Michigan.

Wisconsin, with two impressive victories over important opponents, will be a serious hurdle for the Buckeyes to jump. The Badgers displayed a perfect aerial attack against Pennsylvania. An aerial defense coast Ohio State the Michigan game and possibly the Wildcat tilt.

It may be possible that Willaman will change quarterbacks before the Wisconsin game. Hinchman's selection of plays in several spots of the game last Saturday may be the reason. Dave Chizek, a triple-threat sophomore, appeared good during his few minutes as field general and signal-barker. His passing was a feature of the game. But he was not afforded the support that completes a good-working passing offense.

Chizek earned a reputation as the best passer on the team. He made four first downs against the Wolverines via the air, despite the obviousness of the plays and the offense with which Michigan bucked them.

Ohio State's running attack is regarded as one of the best in recent years—since 1926, possibly. Coach Harry Kipke made a remark to this effect following the game Saturday. The trouble, it is agreed, lies in Ohio's failure to score after the ball is carried within the scoring zone.

BUREAU MANAGER

BURL A. ELY

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 21.—Burl A. Ely, who for the past two years has been manager of the Cleveland Bureau, has been appointed state manager for Ohio, of International News Service, with headquarters at Columbus. It is an announced by Carl Turner, district superintendent. Ely succeeds H. T. Hopkins, who has resigned. Marion O. Chenoweth, who has been Ely's assistant, has been named manager of the Cleveland Bureau.

ESCAPED PRISONER ARRESTED HERE AND RETURNED TO CELL

Noble Nooks, 25, colored, Xenia, an escaped prisoner from the Dayton Workhouse, was apprehended by police and county authorities Monday night at a friend's home on Lexington Ave. and was returned to the workhouse Tuesday.

The capture was effected by Captain Charles Thompson, Patrolman George Robinson, Peter Shagin, motorcycle policeman, and Sheriff Ohmer Tate, the fugitive offering no resistance to arrest.

CRITERION OPENS SHOE DEPARTMENT

Installation of a shoe department in the Criterion clothing store, S. Detroit St., is being announced by H. M. Owens, manager.

The store has obtained the Xenia agency for the J. P. Smith Co., manufacturers of "Smith Smart Shoes" and has installed a complete line of men's oxfords in fall styles and all sizes.

Only men's shoes will be carried in the department, which will be operated in connection with the clothing business. Orders will be accepted for merchandise not in stock.

N. Y. STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—After a firm opening, in which new gains of a point or more were recorded in the speculative favorites, stocks slipped off easily under the impact of a flood of profit taking and short selling. Losses in some of yesterday's past travelers were extended to 2 to 4 points before the end of the first hour, with all sections of the market participating in the reaction.

There was little, if any, change in business and industrial reports and the commodity markets were generally steady. The stock market was swayed mostly by the activities of the professionals, the most nimble of whom were ready to jump to the selling side of the market in order to convert paper profits into cash.

Westinghouse dropped off 5 points to 107½ in this profit-taking move. United States steel reacted about 2 points to 147½, while General Electric, consolidated gas and other favorites were off 1 to 2½ points. American Can lost 2½ points at 114½, and Eastman Kodak was down 6 at 186. The rails started the day at higher price levels, but there was not sufficient buying demand to keep the rally in progress.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

Xenia Central High's injury-ridden football team is preparing to "shoot the works" against Miamiburg here Friday afternoon in an effort to terminate the school's thirteen-game losing streak on the gridiron, and incidentally, hang up its first Miami Valley League victory in the last two seasons.

The Bucs have been hounded by misfortune but the old morale is still present and the team will be out there Friday plugging away and doing its best to register a victory.

Unless some new bit of ill luck crops up this week, Central High footballers and students will be a trifle disappointed. It has been one jolt after another.

First it was Jimmie Ralls, end, who was injured and will probably not be in shape to play before next week. Then Howard Thompson, big fullback, suffered a dislocated shoulder in the Withrow game and will be lost to the team for the remainder of the year. Kinsey, veteran tackle, also retired from the Withrow game with injuries after playing his best game of the season and it is not safe to say what shape he will be in by Friday. Several other players are in only fair condition.

The Xenia-Miamiburg tilt Friday will be the fifth football party between the two schools since gridiron relations were opened in 1920. In four games played since then, Xenia has won three times and the Burgers once. Xenia won in 1920 by a score of 19 to 7 and in 1921, the margin being 20 to 0. After an interval of six years, the schools met in football again in 1928, Xenia winning, 14 to 7. Last season the Burgers beat the bucs, 25 to 0.

Cannonading will be heavy along the Miami Valley League front this week and with Miamiburg facing Xenia here Friday and Greenville traveling to Piqua and Troy visiting Sidney on Saturday. Troy, the surprise team of the league, has held Greenville to a scoreless tie and beaten Miamiburg, and should have no trouble with Sidney, which will probably be just another team in the field. Piqua should defeat Greenville by a small margin and here is nothing to indicate Miamiburg will lose to Xenia.

"Bunny" Purdon has been hinting so much about being an expert football prophet that we have re-elected and will let him pick or rather attempt to pick the winners of twenty-three games this week end. "Bunny" has been drawing up a list of games and selecting probable winners for his own satisfaction ever since the season began and should be pretty good at it by this time. Time alone will tell. He may have a tough time explaining some of these predictions to the boys at Harness Cigar Store, however.

Northwestern to beat Center, Boston C. to beat Dayton. S. Methodist to beat Indiana. Yale to beat Army. Penn State to beat Colgate. Dartmouth to beat Harvard. Brown to beat Holy Cross. Princeton to beat Navy. S. California to beat Stanford. Chicago to beat Mississippi. Nebraska to beat Montana State. Notre Dame to beat Pittsburgh. Michigan to beat Illinois. Capital to beat Ohio Northern. Carnegie to beat W. Reserve. Michigan State to beat Case. Cincinnati to beat Denison. Muskingum to beat Mt. Union. Ohio U. to beat Miami. Ohio Wesleyan to beat Simpson. Heidelberg to beat Toledo. Wittenberg to beat Xavier. New York U. to beat Fordham.

BOWLING

The Greene County Lumber Co. bowling team, annual leader of the Recreation League, extended its latest winning streak to six straight games by winning three in a row from the Lang Chevrolet Co. Monday night. The city champions have now won twenty out of a possible twenty-one games this season. The winners totaled 2,756 for the three games but Lang were not far behind with 2,703. Brickley delivered himself of a 630 series and Price topped the losers with 599. Box score:

FEUD MURDER WILL BE AIRED AT TRIAL

PORTSMOUTH, O., Oct. 21.—Feud history of the famous Cooper warfare on Twin Creek, densely wooded section of Scioto County, will be aired in common pleas court here Wednesday when Robey Cooper, member of one of the clans, will go on trial for shooting Fred Cooper, member of a rival group.

The Twin Creek feud has been famous throughout the tri-state region for years and blazes out anew with regularity. The ambush shooting of Fred Cooper several weeks ago was the latest outburst.

GOOD FOOTBALL

KEEP ONE POINT OF THE BALL IN THE PALM OF YOUR HAND AND THE OTHER UNDER THE ARMPIT

JACK ELDER

Elder shows right way to carry ball for end run or through broken field.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of a series of articles on "Good Football," written through the Central Press Association for this newspaper by Jack Elder, former Notre Dame gridiron star.

Ex-Notre Dame Football Star
Now Central Press Football Writer

Suppose you were in the big football game of the year and had gotten away from the pack for what looked like a touchdown, when the safety man on the opponents' team tackled you and knocked the ball from your hands. Would you be sore when you heard the groan go up from the crowd? Naturally you would, but if you were anxious to improve your game and had the right kind of stuff in you you would shake off the result of that misplay and ask yourself this question:

And most likely you could answer your own question with, "I wasn't holding it right."

To hold the ball correctly for end runs and open field running hold one end of the ball in the palm of the hand and the other end in the hollow made by the arm and body, which is the armpit. The other hand should be used for stiff arming.

An end of the ball is held in each hand with the right hand near the left armpit and the left hand near the right armpit.

With the ball held by the ends as shown in the photo, one end in the hand and the other under the arm, it is practically impossible to lose. No matter how hard you may be tackled or how hard the ball itself may be hit you can always hang onto it.

But suppose you hold it in the way it is held in the drawing? Held that way it is as hard to hold as a greased pig. In fact, if you are tackled at all hard, four out of five times you will lose the ball. It will scoot away from you like a cake of soap in a wet hand.

Quite often during a game an opponent may try to "steal" the ball from you while beneath a pile of linemen, but if it is being held as shown in the photograph it will still be yours when the referee digs you out of the heap.

Therefore, always remember this little thought:

"I am not carrying a loaf of bread home to my mother but am carrying a precious burden which may win this old ball game if I succeed in carrying it across the line for a touchdown."

MISS HOME COMING SELECTED FOR BIG GAME

MISS Melba Lawrence, prominent member of the senior college class, has been proclaimed "Miss Home-Coming" by a popular vote of the student body of Wilberforce University.

Miss Lawrence is the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. R. H. Lawrence of Cincinnati, Ohio, a member of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority and is popular on the campus.

Moreover, she will represent Wilberforce University at the homecoming game with Lincoln University of Missouri at Wilberforce.

On this occasion hundreds of alumni are expected to return to the campus to take part in the festive celebration preceding and after the game.

A special home-coming committee of which Prof. A. J. White is chairman has been busy working out plans for the entertainment of the home-coming Buckeyes and their friends.

On the night preceding the game all fraternities will hold open house from 7 to 9 o'clock; during this day and in the forenoon of the day of the game there will be a registration of alumni in the Wilberforce University Million Dollar Endowment Office.

Between halves of the game there will be stunts by students. Prizes are being offered for the best decorated fraternity house and an appeal is being made to all Wilberforce graduates to return for the big celebration.

LUTHERAN LADIES AID TO OBSERVE ITS ANNIVERSARY

Plans are now being made by the anniversary committee of the Ladies Aid Society of the First Lutheran Church to celebrate the thirty-fourth birthday of the organization in the Sunday School rooms of the church, 303 W. Main St., November 12, beginning at 4 p. m.

Hostesses will be Mrs. Theron White, Mrs. C. E. Mellage, and Mrs. Kenneth Witham. Special tribute will be paid to two charter members of the organization as well as several other women who have continued faithful membership over a long period of years.

Final arrangements were recently completed by Mrs. F. F. Filson, Mrs. Walter Maxwell and Mrs. William Bone, for a chicken supper to be served to the public, Thursday between 5 and 7 p. m. The event will be held at the church. Special music and entertainment for the children will be provided for the guests.

CHURCH MEN'S CLUB WILL HEAR SPEAKER

The first meeting of the season of the Men's Club of the First Presbyterian Church will be held Thursday evening, according to invitations sent out Monday. Dr. L. S. Hadley, New York, will be the guest speaker of the evening and his subject will be, "Modern Men and Modern Christianity."

The committee in charge of the dinner met last Friday evening to complete plans. A pot roast dinner will be served at 6:15 o'clock, the cover charge being sixty cents a person. Reservations are to be made as soon as possible with A. V. Miller, Members of the committee are: Dr. Paul D. Espey, F. L. Smith, A. V. Miller, Purl Cox, Rudolph Weber and George P. Tidally.

WILLIAM Z. FOSTER FREED FROM PRISON

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—William Z. Foster, Communist candidate for governor, was released today from the prison at Welfare Island, where he was sent for his part in the unemployment demonstrations on March 6.

Foster was released before the usual time to avoid a demonstration. A rally in Madison Square Garden is planned tonight in Foster's honor.

RALLY SERVICES AT CHURCH DRAW LARGE ATTENDANCE SUNDAY

Annual Rally Day services held Sunday morning at the Sunday School and church services at the First Presbyterian Church, drew a large attendance.

The subject of the rally services was "Fishers of Men" and the old symbol of a fish, used during the days of the Catacomb Chapels of old Rome, was used symbolically in advertising the services.

Cards in the shape of a fish were mailed to members during the past week and these were collected at the services Sunday in a large net by a group of boys. The front of the church was decorated as a small section of the sea of Galilee and large fishing nets were used to create the proper atmosphere. Two small fishing boats, imitations of the boats used in Biblical times, held a place of prominence in the decorations.

A special feature of the service was a play presented by members of the junior department. The play, "Fishers of Men" was written by the Rev. W. H. Tilford, pastor, and was directed by Miss Eleanor Alexander. Characters in the play were: three boys playing on the beach, Ned Chamberlain, John Winter and Philip Moore; three boys, who took the parts of Simon, James and John respectively, Clay Messenger, Robert Funderburg and John Bloom. Albert Moore took the part of an ambassador of Christ and quoted the words of Christ in the scene. The play opened with the boys getting into the boat and were ordered to move out from shore. Then the ambassador read the parable of the sower, the part of the sower being portrayed by Frank Espey. The nets were let down into the sea and many fish were caught, a group of boys in another boat being called to the fishermen's rescue. Simon, James and John were called from their nets to become "fishers of men" by the ambassador for Christ. A discussion was held by the boys concerning the essentials of fishing and the essentials of winning men to Christ. The players were attired in colorful costumes which added to the attractiveness of the scenes. The Rev. Mr. Tilford closed the playlet with an appeal to all to support the Sunday School and to become "Fishers of Men."

A report was made on the attendance in the junior department for the year and the following were reported to have been in attendance every Sunday: Frank Espey, Julia Tilford, Betty Rose Baldner, Jean Tilford and John Bloom. Others who attended forty Sundays or more were: Charles Kinsey, forty-nine; Albert Lee Moore, forty-six; James Bloom, forty-five; Harry T. Moore, forty-seven; Philip R. Moore, forty-six; Robert Winter, forty-six; John Winter, forty-six; Elizabeth M. Espey, forty-four; Gertrude Fulton, forty; Richard Messenger and Billy Rickels, thirty-six; Ruth Kafory, forty-three and H. Clay Messenger, forty-five. The Rev. M. Tilford presented a diploma to each one having a perfect attendance and the others were presented certificates. The average attendance for the junior department was 46 per cent for the year.

Don't Stub Your Toe!

ONE DARK NIGHT—so the story goes—a certain monarch placed a large boulder in the middle of the road. Thousands of his people, thereafter, severely stubbed their toes or troubled to walk around. At length, one lusty youth—wiser than the rest—seized the stone and heaved it from his path. And where it had rested, he found a bag of gold.

Are you stubbing your toe? Are you overlooking any bags of gold? How about the advertising in this paper? Do you read it—consistently? It is a bag of gold to many of our readers.

In our columns you will find the advertisements of alert, progressive merchants and manufacturers who seek to tell you something they think you ought to know. This advertising is news about the very things that interest you most—articles that will save you money, lessen your work, or add materially to your comfort and well-being.

Thrifty men and women read advertising. To them it is a plain, every-day business proposition — a duty they owe themselves and their purses. It tells them where they can buy exactly what they want at a price they can afford to pay.

Advertising pays them. They make it pay.

It will pay you too. Read it

Don't Stub Your Toe!

ONE DARK NIGHT—so the story goes—a certain monarch placed a large boulder in the middle of the road. Thousands of his people, thereafter, severely stubbed their toes or troubled to walk around. At length, one lusty youth—wiser than the rest—seized the stone and heaved it from his path. And where it had rested, he found a bag of gold.

Are you stubbing your toe? Are you overlooking any bags of gold? How about the advertising in this paper? Do you read it—consistently? It is a bag of gold to many of our readers.

In our columns you will find the advertisements of alert, progressive merchants and manufacturers who seek to tell you something they think you ought to know. This advertising is news about the very things that interest you most—articles that will save you money, lessen your work, or add materially to your comfort and well-being.

Thrifty men and women read advertising. To them it is a plain, every-day business proposition — a duty they owe themselves and their purses. It tells them where they can buy exactly what they want at a price they can afford to pay.

Advertising pays them. They make it pay.

It will pay you too. Read it

SAVING IS POOR ECONOMY!

When It Is Saving At The Cost Of Health

By RUETTA DAY BLINKS/
Specialist in Food Buying for the Home and Food Consultant, Home-Making Center, New York City.

Sometimes when the housewife is studying her expenditures in an effort to make the bills and budget meet, she pounces upon food costs. This one item she finds is usually from a fifth to a third of the family expense.

Then and there she resolves that next month she will clip ten dollars or so off the food bills. This may mean, according to her planning, margarine instead of butter, and plain milk instead of enriched milk on the morning cereal. Or, perhaps, she will make desserts the point of attack and omit them entirely, or decide that fresh fruits and vegetables are an extravagance in winter when dried and canned goods are plentiful and cheaper.

But is economy of this sort real economy?

Nowhere can wrong economy be followed by more disastrous results than when it is not safe to clip the food budget. It is not safe to omit any one class of foods as a whole. Some foods are "growth foods," others are "energy foods," others are "regulating foods," and still others contain the elusive vitamins without which life is impossible. We need all these elements in our diet. When we economize on food we must be sure that we are not economizing on health.

This means a careful planning of menus and buying methods. In this planning the part simplified electric refrigeration plays is reflected in many ways. Not the least of these is the economy effected by the elimination of daily trips to market. On bi-weekly marketing trips milk, butter, eggs, meat, fish, fruit and vegetables may be bought in larger quantities, a method of buying which constitutes an item of considerable saving.

So much has been said and written about the part milk plays in the diet of children that most mothers provide it for them. But the necessity for rich milk is not always so well understood. I have seen housekeepers use the top of the milk for the grown-up's coffee and the remainder of the quart for the children's beverages. This is not real thrift. Butter fat, whether it is found in creamy milk or in butter, is one of the best sources of Vitamin A and D, and these two vitamins are necessary to the health of children. Vitamin A promotes growth and Vitamin D prevents rickets. Therefore, we must be cautious in the use of butter-fat substitutes which are defective in vitamin content, especially if there are children in the family. Be sure they get enough butter and rich creamy milk.

Thanks to the perfect refrigeration afforded by my electric refrigerator I can keep table and cooking fats in perfect condition for weeks at a time. Therefore, I keep a variety adapted to several purposes. Since butter substitutes are usually sold in two-pound prints, or two pounds for thirty-five cents, I buy two pounds at a time. Then I store it away in a crock for handy use in cakes, cookies, bread-and-butter puddings and other foods which have milk in them to make up for the lack of vitamins in the butter substitute. It is desirable, too, which the children do not eat. I usually prepare with a substitute for butter.

Few of us would knowingly cut down the sources of our energy supply, for we all need a full supply in these strenuous days. Yet sometimes, to save money on our food bills, we decide on a Spartan regime and forego desserts. This again is false economy, for we need sweets—an energy food—in moderate amounts.

Here again I find that my electric refrigerator steps into the breach by glorifying simple custards, gelatin mousses and fruit salads. These simple sweets have almost entirely replaced, in my household, the costly pastries and elaborate desserts of former years.

I have said so much about fresh vegetables that it seems like repeating to touch upon their importance again, but, when we are studying their costs in relation to other foods, let us remember that they are vitamin sources which we cannot afford to be without. Let us learn, especially, to know the worth of various cheap and plentiful all-year vegetables.

Cabbage, for instance, has about the same value as the more expensive cauliflower or broccoli has in the vitamin scheme. Spinach, too, is valuable for its vitamins, and it is cheap, whereas artichokes have less than half the vitamin content and cost four times as much. Raw carrots are really delicious when served crisp in a nest of ice cubes from your Electric Refrigerator. And carrots fairly bulge with vitamins!

Celery is a dubious source of vitamins because of the bleaching process which makes it palatable. It costs three times as much as carrots and yet we see it far often on winter tables.

Here are three steps toward sensible economy:

—Set aside a definite amount of money for each week's food supply.

—Plan and write out the week's menus. Then write out shopping lists which will supply the necessary ingredients.

—Do away with waste. This last is a big step for most housewives. Some of us waste such obvious things as the valuable mineral content of vegetables by throwing away the water in which they were cooked instead of saving it for soup stock. Others waste grade A eggs by using them in cooking, when grade B would do as well.

Or waste may be a subtle thing, such as the loss of some delicate flavor that we have paid extra to obtain in a favorite food. For instance, the delicately nutty flavor of the last cubes of the Gruyere cheese disappears when the cheese is kept for a few days in an old-fashioned refrigerator. If the cheese is properly refrigerated, its delicious flavor will be retained indefinitely.

In addition to the minor wastes, there is the waste in many households caused by deficient refrigeration of foods. Scientists have determined by exhaustive tests that fruit, vegetables, meats, milk and many other perishable foods must be kept at a temperature below 50 degrees Fahrenheit at all times, to maintain properly their original and wholesome freshness. Electric Refrigeration checks bacterial growth in all foods, thus eliminating waste and safeguarding health.

These are some of the strategic points we must attack when we plan to establish an economy regime. If we study our market carefully, study our family needs carefully, and the remember that perfect refrigeration complements wise food-purchasing, we shall save on our food bills and do it wisely and enjoyably.

GOOD lighting and ventilation have been kept constantly in mind by the designer of this attractive face brick home so suitable for construction anywhere. The well-placed outside chimney, the sloping roof over the entrance and the long sweep of the roof in the rear all combine to give this home individuality.

Permanence of beauty as well as construction has been given to the house through the use of face brick on the outer walls and flat tile or slate on the roof. This combination results in a home that retains its natural beauty through the years, taking on a mellowness that becomes only more charming as the years pass by.

The unique placing of the breakfast room is a feature of the first floor plan. Upon entering the hall a glimpse is obtained, through an arched doorway of this cheerful room, placed in a bay under the stairway. Through the windows in this bay one has a commanding view of the garden and when the sun is in full play the brightness makes this room an ideal one in which to start the day in a pleasant frame of mind. The large living room, 20 feet 6 inches by 15 feet, is exposed on three sides, two sides having windows and the other having an opening onto a large, arched porch. The rear window permits a view of the garden. The dining room is directly in front of the kitchen and has windows on two sides. The kitchen is unusually large and is fitted with cabinets which displace a pantry. Besides being in close connection with dining and breakfast rooms, the kitchen opens onto a porch which is generous in size and has a direct opening into the attached garage. A lavatory off the hall completes the room arrangement on the first floor.

On the second floor are three spacious corner bedrooms, each with a large closet. The bath is located at the head of the stairs and of equal distance from each of the rooms. There is a linen closet in the hall and a towel cabinet in the bathroom. Under the sloping roof over the porch is a large storage space, part of which could be added to the bedroom if so desired. A 50-foot lot would accommodate

THE OLD HOME TOWN

IT WAS LOCKED A RAPID-FIRE MYSTERY STORY

BY JOHN HAWK
© 1929-30
RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSN., INC.

READ THIS FIRST:

Robin Smith, young poet, accepts an invitation to a house party because Lady Gwendolen Winston, with whom he is desperately in love, will also be present. After quarreling with the Earl of Winston, Gwendolen's brother, and Donald Flint, her fiancé, he looks for the door of his bedroom and flees through the window back to his attic room. The Earl of Winston is missed, and on a search the earl's dead body is found under Robin's bed. The poet is arrested. Scotland Yard detective return him to Alston Manor, the scene of the murder. He is questioned. The poet is held for the coroner's inquest. All the members of the house party give their testimony regarding the murder. Donald Flint, newly announced fiancé of Lady Gwendolen, is called to the stand.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER 18

All necks are craned for a better view of the famous flautist and newly-announced fiancé of Lady Gwendolen. He is dressed in a stout Norfolk jacket and knickerbockers, and looks more as if he were prepared for golfing than for the serious business of an inquest. His nonchalant detached air intensifies this impression. It is proving an exciting day for the twelve men of the jury. One they would talk of for years to come.

"I understand, Mr. Flint," the coroner resumes in his most gracious manner, "that you saw Lord Winston from the window after the other guests were assembled in the music-room."

"I can almost swear I did. I was standing at a window which opens on the garden, when I caught sight of a tiny, flickering light, such as a cigarette would make if it were being smoked. Then I discovered in the dark a faint outline of a figure. I was about to say that it looked like Lord Winston when a flash of lightning lighted up the garden and revealed to me very distinctly the figure of a man with head bowed, as if in thought. The back was turned to me, but the build was identical with Lord Winston, as far as I could judge."

"That is an important point," observes the coroner, addressing the jury, "for it almost certainly dates the murder as occurring after the guests had all reassembled in the music-room, and would thus eliminate all the guests who were in the presence of each other up to the time the murder was discovered—or to within an hour of that time, as the doctor fixes the times of the death at about ten o'clock on the fatal night."

While the coroner is speaking, Robin feels all eyes turning in his direction. He lowers his eyes, and tries to bear the scrutiny as if he were not aware of it. This new evidence is to him the worst blow of the morning for he had overlooked the matter in preparing himself for the ordeal. He had entirely forgotten Donald Flint's calling out that he saw Lord Winston until he was reminded of it so rudely. How did the coroner know so much beforehand? Robin is troubled.

Mr. Flint next verified his fiancée's evidence as to the inconsequential nature of the difference which occurred between Robin Smith and Lord Winston, due to the poet's impetuosity in coming to Lady Gwendolen's defense. And after confirming the evidence of the other guests, the coroner dismissed him with a gesture.

Prince Pozolevsky is next announced. He is only able to corroborate the testimony of those who had gone before him. He, as Mr. Flint, had been a stranger to the dead man, the coroner observes, and it is therefore natural that he should know little of the unfortunate occurrence.

The thin white hands of the prince work nervously behind his back as he replies to the formal questions, but he answers collectedly enough. Only Bruce Armstrong seems to watch the thin white hands. And as he watches them he frowns.

The inquest proceeds. Robin finds himself growing more and more restless and impatient. Impatient for what? he asks himself ironically. The rope? He dares not think of it! He could never get through the morning like a man if he did.

Miss Haddon is called, and her testimony proves as meager as that of the two men who had preceded her. Next comes Andree. When the coroner's now familiar voice calls, "Lady Oyle," Robin looks up with interest. She is his friend, yet she, even as those thirteen men who would listen so carefully to her words, believes him guilty. Would they know how she felt? he wondered. Would it make them all the surer because she, his friend, thought so, too?

"I understand, Lady Oyle," commences the coroner, "that you and Mr. Smith have been acquainted for some years. Now I want to know if he was to your knowledge in the habit of taking French leave in the manner he did on that fatal night?"

"I never knew of his doing it."

"You think ordinarily he would leave by the door, not by the window?"

"Oh, yes!"

"Then something unusual must have happened on that night to make him choose the window. Do you know of any unusual happening which might account for it?"

"No, I do not." Her voice is very even; there is a slight hesitation every time she speaks, and she enunciates her words slowly and carefully, as if she gave thought to her answer. When a nod from the coroner dismisses her, a look of relief comes into her face. Robin is quick to notice it, although the others do not seem to see anything out of the ordinary. He cannot help wondering why she should be so relieved. It is odd. It makes him wonder if she knows something, something which might help him, but which she does not want or does not dare to tell. He desperately wishes he knew.

"Mr. Armstrong?"

How the twelve necks in the twelve chairs stretch when his name is called! Who among them had not heard of Bruce Armstrong, the famous explorer, who had dared more and suffered more than almost any other man of his time? Who among them had not looked at his picture in the illustrated papers and vicariously lived through his thrilling experiences? And here is the paragon before them in the flesh for them to feast their eyes on quietly and contentedly.

"I didn't know that he had such a big beard," murmurs one to his companion.

"Nor that he was so powerful a man," whispers another. "I'll bet you a quid that he'd tip the scales at fourteen stone."

"The pictures in the papers don't give an idea of him!" observes a third.

"Now, Mr. Armstrong," the coroner's respectful voice breaks in on these whisperings. "I understand that you know more about the happenings of that fatal night than any of the other guests. Also that you have been acquainted with the dead man for many years. Now can you throw any new light on the tragedy?"

"I may be able to, and again I may not," is the quiet reply. "The last time I saw Lord Winston alive he was walking in the garden, smoking. That was before I went in and joined the others in the music-room."

"Allow me to interrupt you," says the coroner. "Would you first give the jury an idea of the conversation you had before you went into the garden?"

"I'm afraid I don't remember."

"It had to do with a similar subject to the one now under investigation, I understand."

"Oh, you must be referring to my remarks about the fundamental similarity of civilized and jungle life." A curious half-smile played about the explorer's lips, as if he were amused at some secret thought.

"It is your views on murder that we want to get at."

"I don't know that I expressed any," is the cool reply.

"I understand you said that it was unreasonable that a man should be able to kill an enemy because he is a foreigner, and not your own personal enemy, and that Mr. Smith shouted, 'I agree!' Is that correct?"

UNEMPLOYMENT CAN BE REMEDIED SAYS ANTIOCH SPEAKER

"Unemployment is neither an act of God nor an act of nature," William P. Hagood told Antioch College students in an address here Monday. "More and more we are coming to realize that unemployment can be remedied and that we need not accept it as inevitable."

Mr. Hagood is president of the Columbia Conserve Co., of Indianapolis, an institution which has employed Antioch students on the co-operative basis for the past five years.

With regard to the innovations in industrial practice which have been put into effect by this company, Mr. Hagood discussed various policies underlying the organization and the various steps by which the present principles were put into effect.

"Not many months ago," he said, "an Indianapolis paper published an article about the Columbia Conserve Co., entitled, 'A Business Without a Boss.' It is by no means an individual who has autocratic power as to punishment and discharge of employees, then we are a business without a boss. No individual has the power to employ or discharge—all such matters are under the control of the council which is composed of employees. Today fifty-one per cent of the stock belongs to the employees, who therefore have legal right to command the company's policies."

The speaker referred to the experiences of some of the Antioch students who have been employed as co-operative workers at the Columbia Conserve Co. "Some of your own number," he said, "have sat at the meetings of the council which decides the company's business policies. You know that our chief objective has been that of stimulating the greatest possible number of employees. People learn by doing things. We believe that employees will learn business methods by helping to solve business problems."

The most difficult problem in industry is itself, always has been. How shall the output of industry be shared? Shall a person be paid on the basis of efficiency, or the basis of need? The Columbia Conserve Co. thinks it should be on the basis of need, and for several years past we have proceeded on that belief. I think we are well on our way toward proving that such a policy can succeed. One of the chief obstacles to progress is the view which most people have that because a thing has never been done before it cannot be done."

SENTENCED TO PEN AFTER GUILTY PLEA

Changing his plea from not guilty to guilty to an indictment charging him with feloniously assaulting a 13-year-old Xenia colored girl last August 16, Edgar A. Mann, 20, of Kenwood Ave., Dayton, Ohio, was sentenced to serve one year in Ohio Penitentiary by Common Pleas Judge R. L. Gow Monday morning. Mann was scheduled to be given a jury trial Monday.

The indictment accused Mann of taking libelth with the Negro child, whom he had lured from her mother's home on the pretext he was taking her in his auto to his mother's residence on Home Ave. to work for her. Instead he drove her out in the country and when he made improper advances to her, the girl jumped from the machine and ran.

BRINGING UP FATHER

The Theater

Elsie Janis, the esteemed mimic, former musical comedy and vaudeville star and now a screen writer, is recovering from a dislocated shoulder in Hollywood.

And thus is another one of those happy little Hollywood parties where film stars playing try to put each other, irrespective of sex, in the hospital, written into the record books.

It seems that Miss Janis was no match for Ramon Novarro, big strong screen star, in an impromptu wrestling match staged at a film colony party for the amusement of the other guests. It is getting so anyone invited to a Hollywood party should wear a suit of armor for his own protection.

As one Hollywood wit put it, when asked if he was going to a certain dance: "I don't know. Who's fighting?"

"I can't make it... I can't make it..." Thus spoke Milton Sills, one of the most famous of the old guard of silent film stars, just before he died.

They were the words of a desperate young sailor, spoken as he struggled hand over hand up the ropes on a blistering sea night while Sills, in his last role as "Lief Larsen," the savage "Sea Wolf," threatened below.

Sills has just finished the Jack London story before he suffered the fatal heart attack which dashed him from dramatic heights as a star of the new sound art. The drama of the scene, the tremendous pity of it, may have gripped Sills so strongly that the piteous words were running through his mind at the time he collapsed on his tennis court.

"Alfred Santell, director of the picture, said he never saw an actor take his role more seriously." The drama of the story seemed to have filled Sills' mind entirely. He studied his part a long time and finally evolved his conception of the character. To make the brutal "Sea Wolf" successful he thought there should be a degree of spiritual quality about him."

Sills was the fourth actor to essay the role. The picture brought to screen recognition for the first time by Jane Keith, formerly a private secretary, whom Santell discovered.

HARRY TOULMIN TO BE KIWANIS GUEST HERE ON OCTOBER 28

The Xenia Kiwanis club will have another eminent guest speaker Tuesday night, October 28, in Col. Harry Toulmin, Dayton, it is announced.

His subject will be "The Way Out," and will be a timely discussion of mergers and consolidations with a distinct bearing on relief from the present business depression.

Col. Toulmin in the World War was chief of the coordination staff and member of the strategic staff of the Air Service, American Expeditionary Forces. He was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal. Col. Toulmin is now on the staff of the Thirty-seventh Division, Ohio National Guard.

In "Who's Who in America," his condensed record takes up more than a page. Col. Toulmin is a regular contributor to these magazines: Forbes, Business, System, Nation's Business, and Magazine of Wall Street. In addition he is the author of seven well known books. They are: "Social History," "The City Manager," "How to Keep Invention Records," "Bothering Business," "Trade Mark Profits and Protection," "Air Service in A. E. F.," and "Executive's Business Law."

It was on the recommendations made by Col. Toulmin that President Coolidge reorganized the Patent Department.

The speaker is one of the most widely known men in the country. He represents more than 1,500 corporations in this country and abroad and practices his profession as a patent attorney in the United States, Canada, England and the other principal European countries. He is a member of these organizations:

Council of the National Municipal League.
Fellow of the Royal Economic Society of England.
American Society of Mechanical Engineers.
American Academy of Political and Social Science.
American Political and Science Association.
Society of Automotive Engineers.
American Chemical Society.
Society of American Military Engineers.
Franklin Institute.
Chamber of Commerce, U. S. A.
Fellow of Royal Statistical Society of England.
Charter Institute of Patent Agents, England.
Piedmont, Va., Hunt Club.
Army and Navy Club.
Raven Society, University of Virginia.
He has degrees from Wittenberg College, Ohio State University, University of Virginia and LL. D. from Transylvania College, Lexington, Ky.

REPAIR RECORDS

Submitting the lowest of two bids received, The Johnson-Watson Co., Dayton, has been awarded the contract by County Commissioners for rebinding, resewing and repairing thirty-six old records in the county recorder's office. The successful bid amounted to $293.50.

STOP BAD BREATH

Thousands of people afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know. Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects. Olive Tablets bring no gripping pain or any disagreeable effects.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after 20 years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint, with the attendant bad breath.

Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound; you will know them by their olive color. Take nightly for a week and note the effect. 15c, 30c, 60c.

BOWS TO CAROL

In deference to the wishes of King Carol to reorganize the cabinet, Premier Jules Maniu, above, of Rumania, has resigned. Maniu was at the helm of the government before Carol staged his coup d'etat several months ago.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The senior class of Central High School will stage a Halloween Carnival Friday night in the school gymnasium. The senior Fun Fest promises to be one of the most celebrated Halloween affairs ever staged in the school.

The class has been working for the last three weeks in preparing for the occasion and is making preparations for a large crowd. The public will be invited to attend and join in with the students in making the party a success. This will mark the first time the public has been invited to attend any school function of this type for quite a few years.

There will be all kinds of games and contests for those who care to take part and there will be added attractions for those who are not interested in the wild frolics of the evening. The gymnasium will be filled with booths and side shows of all kinds. There will be fortune telling, fish pond, freak shows, refreshment stands and what not. Real Halloween refreshments will be on sale and possibly some will be given away. There will be something doing for those of all ages. No one will be expected to have a dull evening with all there is in store for them. Prize contests will be held and free shows will be staged at intervals during the evening. A real Halloween atmosphere will prevail.

It is usually the custom for the senior class to give a Halloween dance for the school students but this year they thought that a change would be a much better plan for the students and the townspeople. It was decided to give a carnival so that the students and their families might enjoy the Halloween occasion together. Every member of the senior class is taking an active part in making the party a big success.

A similar affair was staged at a Lorain, O., High School, the other day and was a large success. About 4,000 people attended and took part in the evening's festivities. The admission price of five cents will be charged at the door.

HARRY TOULMIN TO BE KIWANIS GUEST HERE ON OCTOBER 28

The Xenia Kiwanis club will have another eminent guest speaker Tuesday night, October 28, in Col. Harry Toulmin, Dayton, it is announced.

His subject will be "The Way Out," and will be a timely discussion of mergers and consolidations with a distinct bearing on relief from the present business depression.

Col. Toulmin in the World War was chief of the co-ordination staff and member of the strategic staff of the Air Service, American Expeditionary Forces. He was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal. Col. Toulmin is now on the staff of the Thirty-seventh Division, Ohio National Guard.

In "Who's Who in America" his condensed record takes up more than a page. Col. Toulmin is a regular contributor to these magazines: Forbes, Business, System, Nation's Business, and Magazine of Wall Street. In addition he is the author of seven well known books. They are: "Social History," "The City Manager," "How to Keep Invention Records," "Bothering Business," "Trade Mark Profits and Protection," "Air Service in A. E. F.," and "Executive's Business Law."

The speaker is one of the most widely known men in the country. He represents more than 1,500 corporations in this country and abroad and practices his profession as a patent attorney in the United States, Canada, England and the other principal European countries. He is a member of these organizations:

- Council of the National Municipal League.
  - Fellow of the Royal Economic Society of England.
  - American Society of Mechanical Engineers.
  - American Academy of Political and Social Science.
  - American Political and Science Association.
  - Society of Automotive Engineers.
  - American Chemical Society.
  - Society of American Military Engineers.
  - Franklin Institute.
  - Chamber of Commerce, U. S. A.
  - Fellow of Royal Statistical Society of England.
  - Charter Institute of Patent Agents, England.
  - Piedmont, Va. Hunt Club.
  - Army and Navy Club.
  - Raven Society, University of Virginia.
- He has degrees from Wittenberg College, Ohio State University, University of Virginia and L. L. D. from Transylvania College, Lexington, Ky.

REPAIR RECORDS

Submitting the lowest of two bids received, The Johnson-Watson Co., Dayton, has been awarded the contract by County Commissioners for rebinding, reworking and repairing thirty-six old records in the county recorder's office. The successful bid amounted to $293.50.

STOP BAD BREATH

Thousands of people afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know. Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects. Olive Tablets brings no gripping pain or any disagreeable effects. Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after 20 years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint, with the attendant bad breath. Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound; you will know them by their olive color. Take nightly for a week and note the effect. 15c, 30c, 60c.
